BULLETIN

YORK, Pa., Jan. 11—John Curry, 19 ruddy-cheeked black-haired boy of 14, was today found guilty of murder in the first degree for his part in the slaying of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, aged "pow-wow doctor." He was sentenced by the jury to life imprisonment.

COURTHOUSE, YORK, Pa., Jan. 11—While the 14-year-old defendant, John Curry, sat calmly listening in the prisoner's dock, District Attorney Amos W. Herrmann, in his closing address to the jury today asked that a verdict of murder in the first degree be returned against Curry for his part in the "witch" slaying of Nelson D. Rehmeyer. The case went to the jury at 10:45 o'clock this morning.

The judge, in his instructions, told the jury that he could not see from the evidence adduced how it could return a verdict of manslaughter. The boy would, under a manslaughter conviction, serve only from one to 10 years.

Justice moved swiftly. The jury had hardly retired to deliberate the fate of Curry when the third co-defendant, Wilbert G. Hess, 18, was brought to trial.

Selection of the Hess jury was begun at 11 a. m. Hess, a tall, gawky youth, seemed scared. He glanced furtively around the courtroom and was very nervous.

Tears coursed down the cheeks of the boy's mother, Mrs. Alice Curry McLone, as she listened to the booming voice calling for the punishment of her son.

The defense has urged the jury to be lenient with the boy victim of witchcraft and return a verdict of manslaughter.

Betting in York is that Curry will not receive as heavy a penalty as did Blymyer, who was sentenced to imprisonment for life. Blymyer was the instigator of the killing of Rehmeyer, an aged farmer-recluse. Blymyer, Curry and Wilbert Hess murdered him when he resisted their attempts to get a lock of his hair "to break the bad luck spell he had cast over them."

The avalanche of publicity that has descended upon York as a result of the witchcraft case has made the community witch-conscious. The re-

Better Radio

The Star Begins New Program Today; Gives Better Service

IN an effort to give radio fans a better program service The Star today inaugurates a new schedule of stations.

Rather than give a large number of stations, many of which cannot be tuned in by the average set owner, The Star will print daily a dozen or more station programs. These stations will be the broadcasters most generally used by Marion fans.

Programs of the three chain key stations, WEAF, WJZ, and WOR, will head the daily list, while other stations will be WTAM, WLW, WJR, WGN, WGY, WMAQ, WLS KDKA and KFI.

Each station also carries the call letters, the location of the station, the wave length, meter and kilocycle.

Today's program is on Page 10.

Succumbs at Center st. Home at Age of 84; Funeral Saturday

Augustus B. Hayes, 84, Civil war veteran and member of Cooper Post No. 117 G. A. R., died at his home, 377 East Center st., at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon of infirmities of old age. He had been in failing health the last three years.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home, and at 2:30 o'clock at the Epworth M. E. church, of which Mr. Hayes was a member. Dr. B. L. George, pastor of the church, and Cooper Post, G. A. R., will be in charge of the services. Burial will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Hayes was born in Penfield, Lorain county, March 26, 1844. He lived for about 60 years on the farm where he was born, moving to this city, after he had retired about 17 years ago.

He was married to Miss Elsie J. Brown, of Berea, in 1870.

At the age of 18 he enlisted in Battery B, first Ohio Volunteer Light artillery. He served in the army of the Cumberland for two years and 10 months, taking part in several major engagements, including the battles of Murfreesboro and Chickamauga.

Mr. Hayes is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Gerald Williams, of Louisville, O., Mrs. A. W. Newby, of Marion; a sister, Mrs. E. O. Daniels, of Toledo; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

REPORT LOCAL PLACES SAVED FROM PADLOCK

Federal Order Not To Be Enforced Here, Is Indication

FOUR ON LIST

Ackerman Hotel Posts Bond as Guarantee Against Liquor Sales

Padlocking of four Marion business places, tentatively set for Saturday by federal prohibition authorities in notices served last month, will not take place, according to reports received today.

A federal officer from Toledo visited the city Dec. 24 and served padlock notices on the Ackerman hotel, North State st., Harry Heminger's second hand store, North Main st., and Rocco Sansotta's malt and hop store and Dave West's pool-room both West Side places.

Owners of these places were given 20 days in which to show cause why the official padlock should not be attached to their doors. The 20-day period is up Saturday.

Will Post Bond

Today a dispatch from Toledo states that the owner of the Ackerman hotel has agreed to post a $500 bond as a guarantee against use of the premises for future liquor law violations. As a consequence, the padlock order has been lifted.

The Heminger and Sansotta business places have been moved, according to reports from local officials, and this, it is said, will bring the pending padlock proceedings to an end.

Satisfactory settlement of the West case has been made, according to reports.

The padlock order was issued following raids made on the business places by federal prohibition agents. Ten arrests were made at the time and several of the men taken into custody were fined and sentenced.

The Ackerman hotel proprietor, the report from Toledo states, has also agreed not to sell soft drinks. Announcement that the hotel case had been settled was made by Assistant District Attorney Levy.

WILKINS TO RETURN TO CIVILIZATION

Postpones Further Exploration in Antarctic Until Next Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—A copyrighted article written by Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins published in the New York American and associated Hearst newspapers today announces that members of the Wilkins-Hearst antarctic expedition are about to return to civilization.

"We have decided to postpone further exploration until next season," Captain Sir Hubert, who is commander of the expedition, said, "because of the unusual meteorological conditions during the early part of our season and the fact that our discoveries show that Graham-land is a group of islands, not part of the antarctic continent and not offering, as we thought it would, a connected line in case of engine failure."

The article adds that the explorers intend to look for a safe place today in which to store their machines and equipment until next year's venture into the frozen polar regions. When the party returns it was also said, an effort will be made to find a more southerly base for explorations.

ANOTHER WINTRY WAVE PREDICTED

Return of Lower Temperature Officially Forecast for Tonight

Winter winds will again whistle around corners if the prediction of the United States weather bureau are true.

Another cold wave, accompanied by snow flurries, is predicted for Marion and vicinity tonight and to hold forth during Saturday.

Yesterday the mercury soared to 40 degrees but still fell six degrees short of reaching last year's high, when it was 46. Last night, however, it skidded back to the 25 marker. Low for one year ago yesterday was 36 degrees.

MRS. SHELHORN HIT BY TRAIN NEAR RICHWOOD

Drives Car into Path of Erie Passenger Train

SKULL FRACTURED

Funeral Will Be Tuesday at Finley Chapel; Husband Dead

(Special to The Star)

RICHWOOD, Jan. 11—Mrs. Lucy Shelhorn, 50, widow of Gideon Shelhorn, died shortly after 8 o'clock last night, an hour after the machine in which she was riding alone was struck by southbound Erie passenger train, No. 15, within 1000 feet of her home west of here. The car and its occupant were carried about 50 feet down the track before the train could be stopped. Mrs. Shelhorn sustained a fractured skull and her body was crushed. She died without regaining consciousness in the office of Drs. W. B. and H. C. Duke where she was removed in Winter & Son's ambulance. The machine, a Ford touring car, was demolished.

Mrs. Shelhorn, who had been living alone since the death of her husband, Gideon Shelhorn, which occurred Dec. 6, last year, had started to visit the home of a neighbor, John Treece, and it is believed drove onto the track without noticing the approaching train.

Mrs. Shelhorn was born Sept. 16, 1860, near Finley Chapel, Union county, the daughter of Harvey and Sarah Perry Allen. She was a life resident of the county and was a member of Finley chapel where funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in charge of the Reverend Copley and the Reverend Cramer. Interment will be in Price cemetery.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Gus Richlen, of St. Cloud, Fla., and Mrs. Kent Pastor, of Columbus. Three sisters, Mrs. Scove Walker and Mrs. Charles Curtis, of Marion, and Mrs. William Morey, of New Port Richie, Fla., and one brother, Frank Allen, of Richwood, also survive.

Mr. Shelhorn was found dead on a load of fodder at the home of a neighbor where he had gone to assist in shredding corn. His death was due to heart trouble.

TELEPHONE COMPANY ASKS NEW HEARING

Ohio Associated of Marion Charges Valuation Incomplete, Inadequate

Ohio Associated Telephone Co., formerly the Marion County Telephone Co., today filed application with the state utilities commission at Columbus asking for a rehearing on the decision of the commission placing the valuation of the company's property at $1,179,557.

Attorneys for the company charged that the valuation was incomplete, inadequate and incorrect and that no allowance for the "going value" of the property was made.

A tentative valuation of the foregoing sum was placed on the company's property May 1, 1925. The commission on Dec. 15, last made this $1,179,557 valuation permanent.

The petition asking for the rehearing was signed by J. D. Thom, vice president of the Associated company.

Cold Weather Driving Ailment from Northern Ohio

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11—The menace of influenza was passing in northern Ohio today. Recent cold weather in the section is believed by health authorities to have been chiefly instrumental in checking the epidemic.

At Elyria and Niles, where bans on all public assemblages have been in effect for some time, the order has been lifted. "Billy" Sunday, noted evangelist, who had scheduled a campaign at Elyria, will begin his series next week. It had been postponed by the closing order from last week.

Coolidge Mum On Future Plans, Enjoys Rumors As They Place Him In Jobs

President Believed Laughing Up His Sleeve as Everyone Guesses What He Will Do To Occupy His Time

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—President Coolidge, in these closing days of his administration, apparently is having one final fling at keeping his friends as well as the public guessing.

Just as he got a whole year of concealed amusement out of announcing he "did not choose to run in 1928," refusing to amplify that statement, and then watching a good many political writers flounder around over his true meaning, so today it appears he is getting an inward laugh out of the considerable efforts to ascertain his plans after leaving the White House on March 4.

Just before the holidays, when asked to comment on an International News Service story to the effect he most probably would return to Northampton, Mass., for the time being, he let it be known that "that guess was as good as any other."

Today, it seems to be a little better than any other. Cumulative information from surface and sub-surface sources would indicate that at least the first few months after his retirement from office will find Mr. Coolidge back in the New England town over which he once reigned as mayor.

Further, it does not at this time seem likely that any of the big executive positions offered or available to the president are going to tempt him immediately. Five and a half years in the executive office of the presidency look as though they will be followed by a period of "sitting on the front porch and whittling."

It is not unlikely that Mr. Coolidge will turn his hand to writing, interspersed with a little traveling. The views of a man fresh from the national pinnacle on any subject entering his mind would command a very fancy figure from a number of publications and syndicates, many of which are understood already to have put forward lucrative offers.

STEWART TO FIGHT ROCKEFELLER MOVE

"Fighting Colonel" Quietly Lining Up His Forces for March 7 Battle

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Col. Robert V. Stewart, called "the fighting colonel," is going to live up to his sobriquet. Undaunted by the Rockefeller influences, Colonel Stewart plans to fight back with intense vigor the efforts of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to remove the former from chairmanship of the board of directors of the great Standard Oil Co. Wall Street looks for its own financial battle of the century when forces now being arrayed come to grips.

Colonel Stewart leaves today for Chicago. Before he left, International News Service learned, Stewart made plain to friends and associates that he will fight bitterly against Mr. Rockefeller's plan to oust him as contained in yesterday's letter to the company's stockholders requesting proxies for the annual meeting to be used in a vote against Stewart.

Backed by powerful western financial interests who have long been ardent admirers of Colonel Stewart's brilliant record in building up the business of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, and with the unsolicited support of thousands of small stockholders who have shared in its huge profits in recent years, the "fighting colonel" has been quietly but effectively massing his forces for a

Job Huntin' Blues

That's What Hoover Is Hearing as Parade Marches By

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 — Enough recommendations and indorsements to fill a dozen cabinets are piling up on Herbert Hoover's flat-topped desk in the Mayflower hotel, behind which he sits for eight hours daily watching the big parade of visitors file by. The music to which they march might be called the "Job Hunting Blues."

It is a new experience for the president-elect, and an illuminating one. He is said to have dryly observed to a friend that he had not realized before that "the unemployment situation had become so acute" since he had last seen Washington, nor that there were so many men of outstanding ability available for government service.

THIS 10-day period when Mr. Hoover is putting in here in formed his collection period, that is, he is saying Hello and collecting all the data available. The real sifting process, the weighing and eliminating, will come later when he leaves the turbulent political atmosphere of the capital behind him and goes south for the weeks immediately preceding his inauguration. None of Mr. Hoover's intimates expect that he will announce any appointments before leaving for Florida.

Mr. Hoover's departure is not now expected before Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

SENATE IS WARNED OF PACT BY REED

Veteran Missouri Senator Pleads for Own Interpretation of Treaty

WASHINGTON Jan. 11—Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, this afternoon warned the senate that American institutions would be jeopardized and the safety of the nation imperilled by unconditional ratification of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact.

With his 20 years' service in the senate near a close, Reed sang the swan song of his long battle against entangling alliances. He attacked the Kellogg pact as a "mass of confusing interpretations," declaring the treaty had a hundred different interpretations. He appealed to the senate to place its own interpretation on the treaty and added he would then join in ratifying it.

Every war in history, every invasion of a defenseless country, he said, could have been waged, under the terms of the Kellogg pact.

ASK PUNISHMENT

"Forgery Factories" Hit by Demand Senate Take Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—A growing demand swept the senate today for some action by the American state department to stamp out the widespread activities of "forgery factories," which turn out forged documents, attacking nations and prominent citizens.

When the report of its special committee which investigated sets of forged Mexican and Russian documents, is considered next Monday, the senate probably will be asked to direct punitive action by the state department. It was said this government could cooperate with the Russian and French governments in arresting and punishing one group of forgers in Paris, while the Mexican government could be asked to cooperate in jailing another group in Mexico City.

HOOVER AND ROOT TALK OVER EUROPEAN POLICY

Root was a breakfast guest of the Hoovers.

BANDITS ROB TAXI, TAKE JEWELS, COATS

Loot Obtained from Six at Chicago Valued at $50,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—Two bandits today held up a taxicab on South Lake Shore dr. and robbed its six occupants of jewelry, fur coats and cash valued in excess of $50,000.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Murphy of Detroit, Dr. and Mrs. D. F. Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Hammond of Chicago.

The six victims presented an unusual sight as they entered the detective bureau to report the robbery. The men were attired in evening dress minus their coats which the women clutched over their slinky gowns.

The party had attended a theater and supper club and were enroute home when their cab stopped for a red light. Two bandits seized the opportunity to leap on the running board and, brandishing revolvers, forced the chauffeur to drive to an isolated spot on the Lake Shore.

APPROPRIATION $41,081 BELOW TOTAL IN 1928

Allowances Sliced by Commissioners To Get Within Revenue

DEBT FUND LOWER

County's Expenditures for 1929 Figure $634,291 After Reductions

Marion county will spend $634,291, 81 in 1929. That amount has been appropriated for various offices and agencies by the board of county commissioners in the 1929 appropriations completed today.

The appropriations were made on the basis of the county's income estimated by County Auditor Earl D. Thomas. The total amount appropriated by the commissioners equals the estimated income of the county during the year.

The income and expenditures of the county this year will be $41,053.50 lower than in 1928, a comparison of the appropriations for the two years shows. The decrease in expenditures is due chiefly to a decrease in the amount of bonds to be retired during the year.

Reductions Necessary

Other funds, however, have been sliced in some instances in order to keep expenditures within the bounds of the estimated income. After making a rough draft of the appropriations for 1929 by comparison with figures for 1928 the commissioners found that appropriations exceeded the estimated income by approximately $20,000. A revision was necessary to make appropriations balance with the estimated income.

Except in cases provided by state law no salary of county officials or employes was increased. Judges of the common pleas court and court of appeals were given salary increases in accordance with new statutes.

The county's portion of Judge George D. Scofield's salary was increased from $1,050 to $1,200.14. Besides this amount judges of common pleas courts receive $8,000 from the state. Judge Paul M. Crow receives a salary increase of $1,926.88 of which $862.93 will be paid by Marion county and a like amount by the 16 other counties in this appellate district. In addition to this Judge Crow receives a salary of $8,000 from the state. Judge Crow is the only member of the appellate court of this district to receive the salary increase, as he is the only one beginning a new term.

Debt Payments

Retirement of bonds and interest on bonds will cost the county $144,000 in 1929. Last year this item cost the county $106,059.10.

Auditor Thomas estimates the county's income for 1929 for the general fund to be $262,507. This is a decrease, due partly to lowering of tax rates, under 1928 when the income for the general fund was $270,371.71. The income for the road maintenance and repair fund is estimated to be $219,000. Income from this fund includes $40,000 as the county's share of the state gasoline tax and sale of automobile licenses. The dog and kennel fund will provide an estimated income of $8,049.79. Due to an increase in the price of dog licenses the income from this source increased from $6,360.93 in 1928. These sources of revenue, together with the $144,000 income for the retirement of bonds constitutes the revenue of the county for this year.

Working with these estimated sources of revenue the board of commissioners has appropriated money to various county offices and agencies for expenditure during 1929.

$219,000 For Roads, Bridges

The largest slice out of the county income goes for construction, maintenance and repair of roads and bridges. For this purpose $219,000 have been set aside. The commissioners have allowed $184,000 for road work and $35,000 for new bridges and repair and upkeep of others.

For the construction and repair of ditches $21,000 has been set aside. This is a decrease from $22,641.33 for last year. For maintenance of buildings and grounds $16,500 has been appropriated. This is an increase from $15,030.30 for 1928. From this fund bills for heat, light, janitor hire, rent, insurance and other items are paid.

Charity also receives a big share of the county's money. The county home gets $22,000 and the children's home, $21,000. The appropriation for the children's home remains at the same figure as last year, while $200 was cut from the allowance for the county home.

MR. HOOVER, it is said, will take up prohibition in his own way, not controlled by wets or drys. That's the right plan. He was elected president, not the wets or drys.

It is added that Mr. Hoover has investigated "control in other countries."

Other countries legislate on the drink question, making laws to suit the people, rather than trying to remake the people to suit a law.

Among intelligent nations of Europe it is made difficult and costly to get whisky and the other alcoholic poisons; comparatively easy and inexpensive to get beer and wine and the less harmful stimulants that men have drunk temperately for centuries.

These tips do not come from the "feedbox." But tipsters assure you they get information from the man that waits on C. E. Fools actually buy the tips.

NEW YORK CITY, after much discussion, has appropriated the money to build an elevated highway down the West Side of the city, to cost more than $15,000,000. It will remove thousands of cars morning and evening from congested districts. That step other cities eventually must take while waiting to double deck their streets, which also must come. The old-fashioned city won't do.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. has begun a fight to put Col. Robert W. Stewart out of Standard Oil Company of Indiana and ask stockholders for their proxies.

This fight, inside one of the little Standard Oil octopuses, will be interesting. It is the first fight in which the Rockefeller family has appeared in some time. They have had many in the past, and usually won them.

It is harmful to lace children's shoes too tight. Lacing tightly around the ankles, pressing on blood vessels, impeding the flow of blood, gives the heart more work to do. Cobbler Lucey was only half right.

LAS VEGAS HOPES FOR BOOM IN DAM

Bill Paves Way for New Romance in Desert Town

LAS VEGAS, Nevada, Jan 11—Boulder dam spells the magic words of fame, development and prosperity for the little city of Las Vegas an oasis in the heart of the Nevada sage brush

It paves the way to a new romance of the desert which promises to transform a railroad town of 550 inhabitants into a great industrial metropolis of the southwest where less than a quarter of a century ago lay forbidding, death dealing trackless wastelands

The signing of the Boulder dam bill by President Coolidge was the magic signal for the opening of the long awaited boom and is the cause of general rejoicing

Great Water Source

Thirty miles southeast of the city, an hours ride by automobile, is Boulder canyon Here is where the turbulent waters of the mighty Colorado river will be impounded in the world's highest dam and harnessed, to the end that arid wastes shall be reclaimed a great water source created and power furnished to the industries of seven states, California, Nevada Arizona Wyoming Utah New Mexico and Colorado

With the enactment of the dam bill days of old and days of gold are being rehearsed once more but in a modern way

The firework s of two gun men are missing due to the advance of civilization but the prospector and the desert rat are here and the old time vices abound For Las Vegas, 130 miles from Los Angeles is generally conceded to be wide open In many places liquor is sold openly over the bar Booting joints are scattered about town Countless stills are reported in operation Games of chance most of them legalized by Nevada state law are played in gambling resorts on the main business street

A Hectic Year

It has been a hectic year in Las Vegas Charges of graft and corruption has been current openly Just the other day recall petitions were filed against Mayor J Earl Hesse It was charged that he had failed to administer the duties for the best interests of the citizens and taxpayers

Such has been the situation that one development company publishes a half page newspaper advertisement deploring conditions and appealing for the moral uplift of the town and good will toward men regardless of the political aspect

The boom spirit pervades the city It may be months before final details are ironed out and actual construction work on the great dam project is begun But it makes no difference to the people here Everybody's a booster Step off the train Right before your eyes is a large Hillboard Upon it the enterprising chamber of commerce proclaims that this is Las Vegas the natural gateway to Boulder dam

At the first street corner is the next sign of the times Boulder dam real estate for sale Get in while the getting is good Lots for sale easy terms ' Everywhere in town its the same Boulder dam is drummed into the newcomers ears by the hotel man in the restaurants In stores in banks, in offices and in the streets They even shout it at you from passing automobiles Wherever groups gather the topic is Boulder dam

Big Things Coming

"Arizona and Utah must come in they can't possibly stay out now

'I tell you we're in for big things now '

"It won't be long now"

'We're on the up and up boys

Numerous strangers have arrived here in the last few days to make inquiries about the possibilities. They have come by train stage automobile and even airplane for Las Vegas is on the direct Los Angeles Salt Lake City air mail route of the Western Air Express Automobiles, covered with dust from their long trek over the sagebush and sands of the desert, roll into town via California Arizona or Utah and come to a stop before the chamber of commerce building center of information

One car with a Vermont license plate must have started early

All Set To Go

The chamber is headed by Dr Roy W Martin Colorado river commissioner and ardent worker for the Boulder dam project. Dr Martin is a physician by profession and owns the Las Vegas hospital but he also is interested in the real estate business so are lots of others

'Everything will work out now' he tells you enthusiastically The signing of the bill means we're all set to go I believe that Arizona will ratify the seven state dam compact within a month and Utah within three months that the power contracts will be signed within a short time that the railroad to haul men and supplies from Las Vegas to the dam site will be under way before spring and that work in constructing a concrete highway between Las Vegas and Boulder Canyon will be started then also '

Women in Office

MARION county has finally "broken the ice" in regard to women office holders.

While many other counties throughout the state have elected women to various positions since the "opposite sex" was enfranchised and given the right of officeholding, Marion county has not seemed inclined to fall in line.

Women have been city or county candidates here in at least two instances, but without success.

Appointment of Mrs. Cora M. McKeever as county recorder is likely to be followed by others of her sex being chosen for important elective positions, in the opinion of citizens who are active in political affairs.

As a general rule, women holding office in other counties have handled their work creditably and have been reelected by substantial margins. It is asserted, in fact, that in most cases their service to the public has been of a standard higher than that of their male predecessors.

All in 20 Years

THEY say the postoffice business of any city or town can be taken as a barometer of the growth of the city over a certain period of time. If so, Marion must have registered an immense civic growth during the 20 years between 1908 and 1928.

Last week the receipts of 1928 for the local postoffice were reported, revealing a total revenue of $150,630.94. On the following day the musty records of 20 years ago revealed the fact that in 1908 the unheard of sum of $41,866.33 had been taken in by the Marion office.

Yes, just a mere increase of $108,775.61 or 331 per cent. Not so bad, not so bad.

Conscience Money

YESTERDAY morning a West side merchant opened his mail and came across a letter which had been mailed without a stamp, and on questioning his clerk discovered that two cents had been paid the mailman in order to complete delivery.

But it was two cents well invested for it was found that the letter contained a piece of cardboard with a 25 cent piece neatly fastened on it.

Below the card were the hand-printed words: "25 cents mistake made in purchase of merchandise at your store last week."

The extraordinary thing about this episode was the fact that while the sender was only too anxious to see justice done in sending back the 25 cents, he apparently believed he had done his duty and that it was up to the merchant to pay the postage.

The merchant states that he will be ready at any time to pay postage on any future letters of the same kind.

Bogus Checks

SENTENCING of a Marion man to the penitentiary for the altogether too prevalent practice of cashing checks on an imaginary bank account is expected to act as an effective deterrent here for some time to come.

In the last few years local court dockets have shown a steadily increasing number of cases of this kind. The majority of the cases never progressed as far as the one which resulted in the penitentiary sentence.

Victims of the bogus check game have as a rule been content to drop charges after funds were forthcoming to make good the amount of the spurious bank orders.

The check workers became so numerous at one time that several local merchants posted notices to the effect that no checks would be cashed without the best of security. Others continued to be a little careless and as a consequence have paid dearly for the experience. Police say it would be surprising to know the exact amount of "hum checks" cashed by busines men or accepted for merchandise in recent years.

Getting a Start

ONCE he was a devil, folks, a genuine printer's devil on a paper in Three Rivers, Mich., and he didn't work with the Horatio Alger idea of working because he wanted to.

Billy Dale, of the Myriel Ross Players at the Grand theater, used to go to work at 7 o'clock in the morning and toiled until 8:15, when he made a dash for the belovel school building. After school he went to work again, and stayed till the composing room was cleaned up and the papers all run. Saturdays he worked all day, with the added enjoyment of washing windows. Washing windows at the newspaper office wasn't his idea of getting a kick out of life, and perhaps more for revenge against his fate, than anything else, he placed his ladder against the large front window and leaned heavily on it while doing the weekly cleaning.

A printer's devil leads a devil of a life, according to Billy, who got his experience in a small office where every task, from emptying the waste paper basket in the front office to sitting on the platform around the press, controlling the switch while the press was running, was his.

CONTEST RESULTS ANNOUNCED AT Y

Winners in Vacation Events of Boys' Department Are Listed

Results of contests sponsored by the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. during the last vacation period, were announced yesterday by C. Carl May, boys' secretary.

In the Friendly Indian group which takes in boys from 9 to 11, there were five games played, Walter Ronzo won in cue pegs and table tennis, Hamilton Gast in checker play, Mahlon Gast in friends, and Tom Murphy was first in the baseball tourney.

Tom Jeras and Everett Williams were the leaders in the pioneer group. These boys range from 12 to 15 years of age. Jeras won in baby peel and cue rogue, Williams was first in checkers and friends, Charles Reed won in table tennis and Milton Birnbaum was ahead in the baseball tournament.

The Senior-H class was not as much of a success as the other groups, only three different games being played in this group. Norton Rhodes won in billiards and table tennis play and Joe Craus became the Frank Taberski of the "Y" as he won at pocket billiards, hands down.

Figures announced yesterday reveal that interest in the different games in the boys' department at the Y increased rapidly during the last three months. In the month of October the different games were taken out to be played 768 times, while in November the total jumped to 1,283. The past month saw an increase of 821 as the total went to 1,904.

SUFFERINGS OF 7 YEARS ENDED BY NEW KONJOLA

Stomach Disordered, Rheumatic Pains a Torture—Complete Recovery Comes Through Master Medicine

MRS. OLDAG

No matter how long the suffering; no matter what medicines and treatments have failed; no matter if hope of relief has almost vanished, those who suffer may take heart when they hear the undisputed proofs of the amazing powers and merits of Konjola, the new medicine. Let the case of Mrs. Oldag, 227 Winckles street, Elyria, Ohio, be a hint at the marvelous results in new and glorious health that Konjola brings to stay. Mrs. Oldag writes:

"For seven years my health was badly rundown because my stomach was completely disordered by the strong medicines I took for rheumatism. My food did not digest; gas formed and bloating followed. The nights were sleepless, and I grew constantly worse. So did the rheumatism, swelling in my ankles increased and the pains went down into my limbs. It seemed that I was doomed to a life of misery. While my hopes were lowest, I began to read and hear so much about the wonders of Konjola that I decided to try this new medicine. What a wonderful surprise awaited me. In two weeks all of my health troubles were but memories. I have a fine appetite, my digestion is perfect, the rheumatic pains have faded away, and every morning I awake with a feeling of new life."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola, on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medicinal compound, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the best druggists throughout this section.—Adv.

UNUSUAL PROGRAM GIVEN BY ZELLNER

Impersonator Entertains as Feature of School Lecture Course

Zellner, ranked as one of the outstanding impersonators on dramatic circuits in this country, appeared before an appreciative audience at the Star auditorium last night as the third number on the lecture course given by the senior class of Harding high school. It was a return engagement, Zellner having been one of the entertainers brought here by the high school class of 1927.

For 13 years he has been in the dramatic field, six of which he has spent in giving characterizations of outstanding personages in history, literature and everyday life. To present his "Flashes from Life and Literature," has taken years of study, not only of the characters he portrays, but for development of the voice muscles.

Characterizing, Zellner said when interviewed last night, is a collection of the different characters of the drama. Programs of the type he presents are not planned, they accumulate, he said. In the offering last night were 13 famous men and Mrs. Finkelstein.

Variety of Characters

From sage Socrates to the entertaining Mrs. Finkelstein, the program was entertaining and a great many times laugh-provoking.

One of the remarkable things about Zellner was his speed in quick-changing from one character to the next. For not more than 30 seconds was the dais without a likeness of an immortal personage. Make-up was perfect to the last detail, and the costumes were historically correct.

Appearing, one after the other, although not in the order named, were Mark Twain, M. Robin, Benedict Arnold, Popples, Socrates, Moses, small town philosopher, Grant, Lee, Judas, Simon Peter, John Brown, Mrs. Finkelstein and Sandy McGraw. Each character was portrayed in connection with a dialogue.

Zellner received his M. A. degree from the University of Wisconsin. He is also a graduate of Valparaiso university, Indiana.

Today, Zellner appears before a civic group in Springfield.

Two-Day Atlantic Flights.

Report has a number of American capitalists behind a project, the active figure in which is a well-known airplane constructor, to link the United States and Europe with a two-day air service.

According to the meager details of the plan which have become public, the project is to fly great four-motored amphibian planes over a course which will hit Bermuda, the Azores and southern Spain with four big floating islands of steel at intermediate points. The plan is said to have progressed so far that one of these floating islands—to be exact, floating platforms—is already under construction. If it proves successful, the other three will be constructed and so distributed as to divide, with Bermuda, the Azores and southern Spain, the sea distance between the American coast at some point south of New York City and the coast of northwestern France into as near even distances as possible.

These platforms, which are to rest upon great pontoons of heavy construction, will be sufficiently high above the sea to escape the waves save in the most severe weather. Their purpose is to serve the air line as airports, and they are to be fitted out much the same as are airports on land, that the planes may refuel on them, if necessary, and make minor repairs should occasion demand.

According to the plan those behind the project have in mind, the planes will be so constructed as to be equally at home on land or water, their design being such as to enable them to ride in safety any ordinary sea.

While the idea of floating airports is by no means an entirely new one, as it has been looked upon for a year or two as a possibility of the future, at the present time it is bound to appear to the average reader as something of a dream. Still, if one stops to consider for a moment, it will be recalled that, until Lindbergh blazed the way across, a non-stop flight across the North Atlantic at its extreme width was considered nothing more than a dream. Lindbergh made the dream a reality. Who knows but what the capitalists and the constructor who is the leading spirit in the project may make a reality of another dream?

Messages from the Dead.

The newspapers of New York report that Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritualist church of that city, has repeated to Mrs. Beatrice Houdini, widow of Harry Houdini, the magician, who died two years ago following an operation for appendicitis, a code message left by her husband, the text of which was known to none on earth save her, which has been locked up in her safe deposit box ever since her husband's death. Not only did the medium give the exact words of the code message, but he went further at her request and decoded the message for her.

"Since Harry's death two years ago," Mrs. Houdini told reporters Tuesday night, "I have received hundreds and hundreds of messages from mediums, but today for the first time the message was repeated exactly by Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritualist church, while in a trance at my home. They are the exact words left for me by Harry, and I am absolutely convinced that my husband talked to me and that there is life beyond the grave."

"I have been hoping that Harry would speak to me from another world," Mrs. Houdini continued, "and until today I was never convinced that a medium would be able to communicate with my dead husband. When he arranged the code and it was locked up, he said to me that if I should ever receive a message in the words of the code I should rest assured that it was from him."

Mrs. Houdini explained that the first she had heard of the message was last Sunday, when she received a letter saying that a medium, without giving any name, under the control of "Fletcher" in the spirit world, wanted to give her the ten-word code which Houdini had agreed to send "if it were possible for him to communicate."

Mrs. Houdini admitted to the bearer of the letter that the words of the code were correct, but she stated that she wished the message decoded. This was done to her satisfaction Monday, she said, by Mr. Ford, while in a trance. The cue was her wedding ring and, at the mention of the name Rosabelle, she was to tell what it meant. She said she then repeated in French: "I draw the curtain so," and then the medium said: "Rosabelle, believe," which was the translation arranged between Houdini and herself.

It is not for us either to question or vouch for the story. We simply present it for what it may be worth. Some will be inclined to jeer at it; some will accept it at its face. Some of the world's brightest minds refuse to believe in spirit messages, and again some of the world's brightest minds believe in the possibility of receiving messages from those who have passed from this life. In this particular case, it may have been a case of mind reading or some other perfectly natural explanation, although, if the facts are as stated, it is hard to understand how mind reading could have been utilized.

This much is certain: while Harry Houdini believed, as many other believe, that we of this world are frequently influenced by our thoughts of friends and loved ones who have gone to the world beyond, he did not believe that messages were received from them, and he seemingly took delight in exposing the tricks of the so-called mediums. Thus he arranged the test; his idea undoubtedly being that failure of receipt of a message from him would prove his contention that those who pass away do not communicate with those they leave behind. That he had arranged the test was widely advertised. It was looked upon as a fair one. Those who scoff at the idea of spirit messages have utilized the failure of the receipt of the agreed message from him as proof of the folly of the idea. And now comes his widow, who says that the code message agreed upon has been received, and not only that, but also that it has been decoded by the medium.

We do not seek to combat the views of any believer in spirit messages, but even in this test case we are not wholly without our doubts. As a matter of fact, we have been wondering if possibly Mrs. Houdini may not be contemplating some kind of a stage appearance or some enterprise where publicity will prove of value. Whether or no we are unjust in this, time will tell.

HOT DOG.

Give Baby Plenty of Sunlight.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

If a baby thinks and could talk, what a lot we might learn about how to treat infants. It is true that a youngster may yell its protest, yet we are often at a loss to know just what it is that displeases the child. We are not sure whether it is gas or a pin.

It isn't a bad idea to be imagining often how you would feel if circumstanced exactly as the child is. As an example, suppose you try to think how you would feel if you were bundled up with a couple of thick army blankets, a woolen hood and long, thick stockings.

In these modern days many tiny babies are swaddled in thick and tight clothing and older children are dressed in short socks and shorter skirts. It wouldn't be a bad idea to strike an average between the two practices.

The baby needs the effects of sunshine on the skin. The older child needs to be better protected from the cold.

We learn much from the appearance of the skin. That gives a good idea of the health of the grown-up. Its condition determines to a great extent the welfare of the baby.

Activity of the skin depends on the circulation of the blood. This in turn is determined by the care of the body's surfaces. The doctor makes a close study of the skin and the mother will do well to imitate him.

Exposure to sunshine is one of the very best ways to keep the skin in prime condition. Exercise is another important consideration.

Now you will laugh at me. "Surely," you say, "you do not expect an infant to get out every day for a long walk."

No, I don't. But babies require exercise even if they can not walk. Strip off all those thick garments and hands. Then see what the baby does.

Find a place in your house where a wide couch, the bed, or a strip of carpet can get the full effect of the bright sunshine. Make sure it is warm enough in that room not to chill the baby. Spread a sheet on the chosen spot and place the naked baby there.

My, what a time of wiggling and kicking it will have! Let the little chap kick and squirm to his heart's content. That is baby's way of getting exercise. That is the way nature intended to strengthen the muscles and improve the circulation.

Improvements have been made in the manufacture of glass. It is made now so that the material which cuts out certain qualities of light is eliminated. The sunlight has all its good effects, which can not be felt unless such glass is used in the windows. But if the day is warm enough to open the windows, then the baby will get the direct rays of the sun and every bit of their virtues. But if you haven't the new-fangled glass give your baby all you can of the sunlight, even if it is filtered through ordinary glass.

Keep the skin clean by regular bathing. If the skin does not act as it should have the tub bath as hot as it can be borne and continue it rather longer than usual. Sweating is good for everybody.

The more active the skin is the less strain will be placed on the kidneys. In this way the poisons of the body are eliminated.

Editorial Opinion.

LEMON AND SODA.

A simple home prescription being used with increasing success by doctors everywhere is still too little known to the mass of the people who are fighting colds, the grip and "flu" with all the means at their disposal.

Lemon and soda, as it is being used, is rather a preventive than a cure. Its use is based on the fact that a certain type of cold begins in the stomach, the germs multiplying when an acid condition of the intestinal tract prevails.

The use of bicarbonate of soda to alkalinize the stomach has been known widely and favorably for years. It is one of the standard home remedies. During the past decade the lemon and the orange have come into high favor with both physicians and the general public. It is now known that these acid fruits have an alkaline reaction in the system, and that instead of acidifying the blood they tend to create just the opposite condition.

The combination of soda and lemon seems to be highly favorable to disrupting those colds which begin in the stomach, and which, if left unchecked, might turn into that type of the influenza of which a prominent symptom is nausea.

The dose is a level teaspoonful of soda and the juice of half a lemon mixed in a glass of water. Three such doses are to be taken a half hour apart, thus placing three teaspoonfuls of soda and the juice of a lemon and a half within the stomach in exactly an hour.

Those who, not having tried this mixture, imagine that this is a bit too much of a good thing will be surprised at how well their "lemon soda" agrees with them. It is probably true that nine out of ten persons suffer from acidosis in some degree, which condition is held by many to be the breeder of more diseases than almost any other one state.

He who drinks this beverage by all means should avoid the temptation to put sugar in it. To do so would be to defeat the purpose of the mixture. It will be found that the sizzling of the lemon in combination with the soda makes the mixture palatable. The first effect of the three doses, as outlined, is to make the drinker feel "empty," leaving him quite hungry. More important, however, is the fact that the stomach and its tributaries have received a concentrated, easily-handled dosage of alkaline materials which tend at once to put a damper on the common cold. In this day and age of respiratory diseases anything which helps toward such a result is nothing to be sneezed at, no matter how simple it seems.—Washington Star.

CANADA AND VOLSTEADISM.

Appeals to Canada to stop the export of liquor to the United States will fall on deaf ears until the Dominion discovers that this trade is unprofitable to it. Asking for compassionate treatment is futile. Canadians will cite every untoward incident in our relations with them from the burning of York in the war of 1812 to the possibility of the tariff being increased against their western agricultural products in 1929 to show that we don't deserve compassion. We don't as far as the liquor situation is concerned. We enacted the prohibition amendment and we should enforce it, without the assistance of our neighbors. We can keep Canadian liquor out of the United States any time we are willing to pay the price of rigid enforcement.

A time may come when Canada will realize that it would have been better to have implemented the recommendation of its customs investigating commission to prohibit the export of liquor to this country. At the moment, a few men in Canada are making a good deal of money out of this traffic; and they have sufficient influence at Ottawa to prevent any interference with a trade that is perfectly legal on their side of the boundary. They can not, however, carry on this traffic without dealing with criminals in this country. One of the arguments used by the Canadian "wets" against provincial prohibition was that it bred contempt for the law. It is interesting to observe how long Canadian liquor exporters can conspire with criminals in the United States to violate the eighteenth amendment, without lessening the respect for law in Canada.—Detroit Free Press.

Dinner Stories.

"Are you a reformer?"

"Certainly," answered Senator Sorghum.

"What have you reformed?"

"Nothing. The beauty of being a reformer is that you're always certain of a life job."

"Why did you select that small, thin fellow among all the applicants?"

"He's a wiry little chap, and the job is connecting telephones."

The gate crasher got into conversation with a man at the party and began boasting of his boldness.

"A well-dressed chap with plenty of nerve can easily butt into these affairs and have as good a time as anybody," he said. "Take my own case, I had no invitation."

"Neither had I," returned the other man with a quiet smile.

"That so? How did you work it?"

"I'm the host," came the disconcerting reply.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 11—Thoughts while strolling: Those rare window displays at Saks. Norman Bel-Geddes stuff. Benign white-haired gentlemen who growl if you get in their way. Baby doll faces with serpent wise eyes. The kind who are always being insulted at apartment house parties.

Blanche Ring's happy smile. Heywood Broun with a fresh haircut. Earl Carroll's angelic expression. Fifth avenue restaurant offers chili. And why not. Something sad about the stark naked trees in Central park. But the robins will soon be tugging at worms again. Tra la!

Wonder what the bus checkers who stand in doorways do with their reports. Tappe, the man milliner from Sidney, Ohio. Zero in comedy—those comedians who bark like dogs at dogs on leashes. Something depressing about bugle call. Hatless boys with pipes who rush madly along. Those unctious husbands at rich women.

All night beauty parlors that open at 4 p. m. And the bright ladies who leave them so cosmetically bedecked for the evening. The handbox gyp theatrical agencies. Grantland Rice, a Murfreesboro, Tennessee, boy, who made good in the city. Sign: "Madame Flanigan—Gowns."

What became of the craze for bois de rose? The hotel starter who is a striking image of Lloyd George. Times Square-heads. Barney Gallant has become Bernard in the telephone book. The boys who play bridge and dance expertly in this town do not need to work. Abject beggars who work the limousines.

Wonder if drug stores still employ pharmacists. Never a time in New York when the streets are not torn up. Still it furnishes a lot of work for the Tammany boys. Rita Weiman and her husband. Overheard: "She lives in the snootiest block on Park avenue." Which block is that?

Wish I could sit down at a piano and touch off one of those rippling little airs. Or discuss poetry and art in a careless easy way. Instead of sitting like a statue. And just as inarticulate. Ina Claire stepping out of the Ritz. Those stooped and venerable messenger "boys."

New York's largest hat store is said to pay a $250,000 yearly rental for its new location on the avenue and has more than a dozen display windows. Aside from its main salon there is also a department on the second floor. New Yorkers are, according to population, the most prolific buyers of hats. The heaviest buyer, next to Tom Mix, who actually buys a car load at a time, is a wealthy Montana mine owner who wears a beaver Alpine shaped hat that sells for $60 each. He buys them in dozen lots.

Word comes to Broadway that George Rector is now directing the cuisine for a railroad with headquarters in Chicago. He conducts his school of cooking in an especially built dining car.

With the exception of Mr. Rector, nearly all the old restaurateurs along the Broadway of twenty years ago, have fallen on evil days. They were able to make huge fortunes, but not able to keep them. One other notable exception is the proprietor of one of the best-known establishments.

He had the foresight to acquire a ninety-nine-year lease on a prominent Broadway corner at a small yearly rental. Since that time stupendous offers have been made for his leasehold on the building. But he is the victim of a Broadway weakness—playing the ponies.

And he feared to have the entire sum in a lump. He desired to protect his children in case anything happened. When Broadway "went Chinese" his place became an Oriental cafe. He retired, but is assured of an income of more than $50,000 a year until the lease expires.

Joel Rinaldo, who ran the famous "Joel's" back of the Metropolitan, catering to literary night owls and theatrical folk, quit with a snug fortune at the top of his success. He wanted seclusion to write ponderous tomes about polygeneric theories—as though everybody who is anybody does not know about them.

The Fossils.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

This fine little old celestial lady, Mother Earth, how her very wrinkles deepen into smiles as she indulgently allows her curious children to explore rocky cupboards filled with fascinating mementoes of her teens! What a life story it is! It is a wonder that everybody does not become a geologist.

There has just died a man who, perhaps, was more familiar than any other of his day with the old-time secrets of the earth. He was Thomas Chrowder Chamberlin, inventor of the "planetesimal hypothesis," which undertakes to explain how the planets were conceived through the meeting of two suns—a fortuitous encounter, but fruitful since it gave rise to our whole system of planetary worlds.

But I am not going to speak of that now. I wish merely to refer to the book which Chamberlin finished a little while before his death, his "Two Solar Families," published by the University of Chicago Press. That book tells—hypothetically, but not without probability—the story of the origin and strange growth of the earth. What I want more particularly to talk of here is some of the contents of the old mother's closets which amateurs may take out, handle and admire. Professor Bradford Willard has recently spoken of the importance to the student of biology of learning "the lore of the fossils."

It is that lore that fired the imagination of young Hugh Miller, the Scottish quarry boy, and made him afterward the author of a delightful classic of popular science, "The Old Red Sandstone." And it is that lore which, in our day, has made biology history and stretched the tale of evolution backward to the dawn of time.

People little think of what they tread under foot when they are out in the open, on asphalted country. I am not a geologist or a paleontologist, yet I can recall hours of unmixed delight not so long ago, when I was digging Devonian fossils of most curious and beautiful shapes, filled with fascinating suggestions of their former life millions of years ago—digging them with a jack-knife out in the middle of a country road in central New York, not without fear of automobiles.

One no more needs to be a professional geologist to find and understand the meaning of these buried landmarks of real "world-history" than he needs to be a professional astronomer to see and comprehend the significance of the stars. A few years ago, sitting on a rock in a field at a popular resort, a rock which had been worn smooth by sitters, I saw on the face of the stone the spiral figure of an ammonite, cut like a huge cameo. If anybody had noticed it at all, it had been taken for a mere freak of nature. But when its true character had been explained it became a cynosure for hundreds.

There is an abundance of intelligent curiosity slumbering in every mind, but it needs an awakening. For lack of that awakening, hundreds of thousands go through life missing the best things that old Mother Earth has to show them for their entertainment and instruction. They are only awakened by Barnum and Vanity Fair.

How many among the six or seven million people making up the American metropolis appreciate their daily privilege of seeing the Palisades of the Hudson—a stupendous monument as significant in the history of the growth of North America as the pyramids are in that of the development of human civilization? They are one of those wrinkles on her ancient face that tell of the times through which our planet has passed to furnish us with the sun-lighted Eden of lands and waters that we inhabit today. It is a kind of filial duty for us to see and venerate these things. Let us not call it science, which is cold, but rather family piety.—Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

Robert Rich, Englishman, is still living in the poor-house. He found a necklace one day recently. It was worth $30. He returned it to the owner, and she gave him a reward. The reward was four cents. Robert Rich probably learned a long time ago, before he went to the poor-house, that gratitude is a thing that no human-being can count on. Nobody guarantees it. Few receive it. The wise do not expect it. After all, the great reward is the reward that rests within you—the consciousness that you have done a job.

Samuel Ansel, successful salesman or beggar, whichever he may be, can't do business in New York. He did too well. Shaking and twitching apparently with the palsy or worse, he rode on subway cars and sold penknives. He made $500 a week, cashing in on the pity of the folks. Now the police have banished him. Even at $500 a week a beggar and an impostor is still to be pitied. It is an unhappy and a miserable life. Unless an impostor is dead to every decent impulse, he pays the penalty of his own rotten life.

The generation and distribution of electrical energy has come to rank as one of the great industries of the country. The annual value of the product is approaching $2,000,000,000, and it is fifth in capital investment. Ahead there are immeasurable possibilities for the distribution of electric power over a wider and wider area for more and more purposes.

What an astonishing boon it would be if ambition and human energy could be distributed among the millions of lazy folk and galvanize them into action! Then fewer people would be needed to do the work of the world and everybody would have a great deal of room.

One of the wisest of politicians and diplomats once said: "When you have to make promise or give something that you don't want to give, do it like a king."

If we are going to concede or surrender anyway, then let's do it in the grand manner with a free and generous gesture. It helps to preserve our self-respect and makes everybody feel better.

"Women They Talk About," with Irene Rich, William Collier, Jr., Claude Gillingwater, and vaudeville at the Palace through Saturday.

ONE often wonders just how accurately the movies portray other businesses after seeing their attempts to show the "inside" of the newspaper profession.

In the movie newspapers ethics and journalistic judgment are usually thrown to the winds. They are in "Women They Talk About." But the newspaper angle of this picture is only minor and the theme of the picture is—well, let's see a race for mayor between a man and the woman he once loved. Two youngsters, the son of the man and the daughter of the woman, by former marriages, break down barriers of prejudice between the aristocratic Mervins and the more common Harrisons.

THE climax occurs when the daughter is lured to a questionable resort in the heat of the campaign in an attempt to force the mother from the mayoralty race.

It ends up with a shooting and the once-before-blocked marriage occurs while their children also are wed. And it's sweetness all around.

"Women They Talk About" is just a picture.

Irene Rich plays the mother capably enough. Claude Gillingwater is the obstreperous grandfather. William Collier, Jr., the young lover, John Miljan his father, and Audree Ferris the girl. And, where did they find Audrey?

Action for Damages Results from Accident on Marion-Bucyrus-rd

BUCYRUS, Jan. 11—D. D. Troup was named defendant in a suit filed in common pleas court Thursday by Emilee Morris, who in her petition, filed by Attorney C. U. Uhl, charges that she was permanently injured in an automobile accident on the Marion-Bucyrus rd. Jan. 9, 1928, the accident being the result of careless operation of the Troup automobile.

Mrs. Morris charges that the Troup car, "without lights visible from the front," crashed into the Morris car, resulting in Mrs. Morris receiving a broken leg and a cut above the eye, the injuries disabling until the middle part of last July, and that as the result of the accident there is an enlargement of the bone of her leg for about two inches.

Mrs. Morris seeks $10,000 as the total extent of her injuries, stating that the accident required cash expenditure of $590 for medical attention.

Those govened by the self-annointed tuteral, Alexander, include Dalmatians, Serbians, Croatians Slovenes, Bosnians, Montenegrins, Herzegovinians and others. To manufacture a homogeneous working government machine out of their combination is not easy, even with a bayonet and autocracy to help.

THE Fisher Brothers, who began building automobile bodies in a small way not long ago, now turn many things and have been invited to form a combine to control practically all the world's production of whisky.

The idea started in Canada. A combination of British and Canadian concerns would doubtless make some gentlemen very rich. It would not, however, affect the whisky business of the United States, its tens of thousands of secret stills, tens of thousands of "speakeasies," at least 26,000 of them in New York City alone. They make their own—and heaven help the drinkers of it!

sponsible leaders are eager to have the case over and forgotten.

Powpow doctoring is on the wane, temporarily at least. The "doctors" are laying low. Yet some of them are still doing business at the same old stand.

This correspondent paid a visit late last night to one of them, "Doc" Andrew C. Lenhart, who once treated Blymyer. He found him in his den, perusing a very large Bible.

Talks To "Doctor"

"I have not come to be powwowed," the reporter stated. "I merely want your reaction to all this publicity about the York powwow doctors, witchcraft and that sort of thing."

The 70-year-old "doctor" dropped something from his mouth into the cuspidor, and replied:

"It's mockery——all these things they're saying about powwowing. Some men have power. I have it. Power is given some men as a talent, just as Jesus gave power to his apostles. The Lord said: 'In my name they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover: in my name they shall cast out devils.'"

The "doctor" was asked if he had read the witchcraft literature such as the book "The Long Lost Friend," which Blymyer was after when he helped kill Rehmeyer, and "The Sixth and Seventh book of Moses," the so-called "Black Arts Bible."

Has Read Books

He had read both. But once was enough for him to read from the pages of the latter book, a friend had asked 'Doc' Lenhart to get in Harrisburg. He finally succeeded. Few copies of "The Sixth and Seventh Book of Moses" and "The Magical Spirit Art" are available and the doctor was surprised to learn the International News Service reporter had one in his possession.

In a subdued, awed voice, the alleged powwow doctor told of his experience when he read the "Black Arts Bible."

"I read only a few pages when I became afraid of it," he related. "I was sitting in my home at night. Suddenly a voice in the hallway called me. I went there. I said: 'Who is it?' There was no answer. I started to read again. The voice called me once more. It was spooky. I went to the hallway again, but there was no answer. I again started to read. Suddenly in the silences of the room I heard awful voices which sounded as if a flock of geese were quacking. It was terrible. I closed the book and the noises ceased."

"You must believe in spooks, ghosts, and those sorts of things."

No answer.

"Do you believe there are such things as witches, or that people can be hexed?"

Lot of Hypnotism

"Well, I don't believe there are any witches like those witches of old. But there is a lot of hypnotism. Some people have a great power over others—call it spells, or whatever you like. Witchcraft and powwowism are nothing more or less than hypnotism. I have a doctor friend who saw 30 persons hypnotized in his presence."

In all solemnity, the "doctor" then said to the reporter:

"You are four quarters: East, west, north and south. The sun comes up in the east, doesn't it? Well, if you want to command yourself you face the sun, don't you? Well, then, your face is the east, your right shoulder, south, the back of your head, west, and your left shoulder north."

It was clear as mud.

Tells of Cures

The "doctor" told of the many miraculous cures he had accomplished in the 30 years he has lived in this community. He had relieved pain, made the sick well and restored health. One of the children, a daughter, was born blind in one eye. He "commanded for the eye." It came. She has seen ever since with both eyes.

The power to do these things came to him 37 years ago, he said, when his wife was apparently on her death bed, and their fifth child was about to be born.

"A voice told me what to do," he said. "I have had the power ever since."

No Charms Used

The "doctor" denied he used charms in effecting cures, or that he performed magical feats by the use of concentrated chunk, or that patients were called upon to make incantations and signs of the cross as they recited psalms.

"I invoke the help of God," he said. "The Lord is with me. I get my power from him."

Asked why he was not able to help Blymer, the "doctor" replied:

"Blymer was a mindless man. The evil spirit had overtaxed his good spirit. Nothing could be done for him. One must either seek God or the devil—either good or evil."

The reporter reached for his hat as the "doctor" started to explain that the sun represents the father of heaven, the moon, the mother, and the stars the angels, and that daylight represents the right kingdom, and that darkness represents the kingdom of evil.

Death of Dogs Arouses Wrath of Prospect St. Residents

TEDDY'S dead. A North Prospect st. neighborhood is in mourning and rightfully so.

Teddy Bern was the pet of Grace Bern, a school girl daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Bern, 610 North Prospect st., and was a favorite with hundreds of friends who passed daily on the street.

Shaggy, teddy-bear dog that he was, only three years old, but weighing 60 pounds, Teddy staggered up the embankment of his home Thursday afternoon and fell dying at the feet of the mother of his owner, a victim of strychnine poisoning.

Teddy's death is one of several canine fatalities of this kind occurring in the neighborhood recently. The dogs are believed to have been intentionally poisoned by some unknown person.

Residents of the neighborhood are making an effort to trace the poisoning to its source.

COUNTY BOARD CUTS $41,081 OFF EXPENSE

Allowances Sliced by Commissioners To Get Within Revenue

drawn $28,550, a decrease from $29,100 for last year. Included in this amount is $5,000 for the blind relief, $9,000 for mothers' pensions, $10,000 for support of local patients in state institutions, $2,500 for patients in tuberculosis hospitals and other smaller items. Soldiers' relief and markers for graves receive $3,415. This also includes an appropriation required by law for Memorial Day services.

Crime Costly

Crime and delinquency eat heavily into the funds of the county. An appropriation of $7,100 under the heading of "correction" is only one of the funds established in connection with crime and law enforcement. Maintenance of the county jail, for which $600 has been set aside will come out of this fund.

The fund for the defense of indigent prisoners has been given $300 for payment of attorneys appointed by the courts. Among other items in this fund is one for $6,000 for prisoners' board and for mileage fees in connection with arrests and delivery of convicted prisoners to penal institutions.

An appropriation of $7,100 was made for the support of the juvenile detention home. This total is a $600 increase over last year. The salary of the officer in charge of the home amounts to $1,200, the county's share of the humane officer's salary is $400. Appropriation for the maintenance and upkeep of the home is $5,000.

These items, however, are not all that crime costs the county. Many other expenditures resulting directly from crime and its prevention are paid from money appropriated for the courts and sheriff's office.

For Property Appraisals

An appropriation of $1,700 has been made for appraising and assessing property. The amount last year was $2,050. The appropriation for legal advertising has been cut to $1,220 from $1,470 last year.

An appropriation of $12,038 was made for elections in the county. This represents a considerable decrease under last year, when election expenses were heavy due to the presidential primaries and the general election in the fall. Expenses of elections last year were $17,131.71, exceeding the 1928 appropriation of $16,810.10.

For Auditor's Office

The appropriation for support of the county auditor's office was cut to $16,135 from $16,695 for 1928. Salaries consume the greater part of this. The county auditor receives $3,135 and the county sealer of weights and measures, $2,100. The appropriation for salaries of clerks and deputies is $9,250. COOLIDGE MUM ON HIS FUTURE PLANS

Rumors Place President In Every Conceivable Kind of Job

newspaper publishers have been putting in unobtrusive appearances at the executive offices of late. The president easily could make more than his present salary in the course of a years writing for dailies, weeklies and monthlies.

Meanwhile, rumor leaps over rumor. Every time the president of a railroad or the chairman of the board of a big corporation dies, the story is circulated that President Coolidge is to succeed to the position. The latest of these is the presidency of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which properly incidentally hires the services of John Coolidge. Before the railroad rumor were tales of the chairmanship of the board of the United States Steel Corp., the presidency of two big life insurance companies, and of Amherst college.

Mr. Coolidge sits back and laughs in his sleeve. To mystify and confuse a group of individuals temporarily, to watch them run around in circles seeking to solve the "Coolidge riddle"—that is his idea of a right good joke.

Strange Light in Rhodez Region Signal from Mars is Theory of Astronomer

Frenchman Believes Martians Have Adopted Inter-Planetary Bombardment in Effort To Communicate with Earth; Flashes Seen on Three Nights

PARIS, Jan. 11—Is Mars trying to signal the earth?

M. Henri Pensa, French astronomer, says that the phenomena recently witnessed in the Rhodez mountains, in Auvergne, when meteor-like trails were seen in the sky, may turn out to be Martian signals.

His statement aroused high interest in scientific circles today.

On three successive nights—at the same hour each time—"meteors" were seen in the Rhodez region. They left a trail of fire in their wake. When they suddenly fell, fragments were picked up.

M. Pensa maintains that no meteor would have been seen on three successive nights traveling in the same direction. He believes that the "apparition" was the result of a Martian attempt to signal our planet.

Light Bright

M. Pensa and fellow scientists observed between 8 and 11 p. m. a glow of silvery light, on absolutely moonless nights, sufficiently strong to enable a man to see objects 200 yards off. That was last winter. The same phenomenon was again witnessed in November. In the absence of a moon the astronomers were unable to account for it.

M. Pensa, therefore, suggests that the Martians, having unsuccessfully tried last winter and again in November to signal the earth by light waves, have adopted a more violent form of signaling in the form of "inter-planetary bombardment." Hence, the "meteors."

After three nights, the meteoric phenomena ceased as suddenly as they had appeared. If the theory of M. Pensa is correct, Mars is once more discouraged by its futile efforts to communicate with the earth.

Suggests Reply

M. Giacobini, of the Paris observatory, explains what would have to be done to reply to the signals. If they are really signals. The simplest way, he said, would be to flash a reply in the Martian manner. But, as the scientist admits, this is easier to say than do. To be seen at all the light would have to be as wide as the city of Paris itself.

Thirty years ago a Madame Guzman established a $1,000 prize for the first person who succeeded in communicating with the other planets. Mme. Guzman accepted Mars, however, therefore, no cash inducement exists for this planet at this time. This may tend to discourage experimenters who are more interested in cash than in the advancement of inter-planetary communication.

HOW TO FIGHT EXCESS FAT

There are hard ways, like starvation, but fewer and fewer employ them. There is a pleasant way, modern and scientific, which combats the cause. A vast number of people now use it. And the slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 30 years—millions of boxes of them. And every lady, in almost every circle, sees the change. New beauty, new health, new vitality.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Learn the facts about Marmola, because of the good it has done. Ask your druggist—now—for a $1 box with the book. Then decide.

Flu Creating Phenomenal Demand for Vicks VapoRub

Although the flu itself is not so serious as in 1918 authorities stress the importance of taking every possible precaution for fear of the complications which invade the weakened system after a flu attack

They urge especially prompt treatment of every cold as colds lower the body resistance and make it easier for flu or pneumonia to get a foothold

That the public is heeding this warning is indicated by the phenomenal demand for Vicks VapoRub the famous external treatment which leaped to fame almost overnight during the 1918 epidemic In spite of tripled capacity the Vicks factories are once more operating night and day and 17 000 jars are now being produced every 24 hours —Ads

If I Were A Man | If I Were A Girl

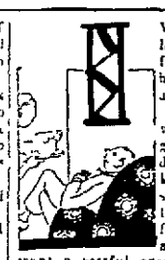
I WOULDN T monopolize a girl for years and then not marry her

I wouldn t park on her doorstep five nights a week and escort her to parties and dances until everyone automatically paired us off together and then after all my devotion and time up and leave her flat

I d remember that by my constant presence I was keeping other men away that by being forever on the job I was building up in her mind as well as in the minds of others an expectation of something more definite than flowers and candy and theater tickets throughout the years to come

I d consider it dishonorable to encourage such expectations to monopolize a girls youth and attractiveness for my own pleasure and then to disappoint her in the end If it weren t for me other men might have been just as attentive and thrown in a wedding ring and a good home besides

In fairness to the girl unless I had definite intentions I d give someone else a chance



I WOULD show a little consideration for a man who had worked hard all day

I wouldn t always want to be going places and doing things I d know that after a strenuous day in the office the boy friend would probably be tired and want a restful evening instead of a beer spree

I wouldn t expect him to take me out to dance every night Sometimes I d try to content myself with a movie, or I might get very reckless and try just sitting home for a change and talking interestingly and companionably

If the boy friend wanted to go home at 10 o clock because he was tired and wanted to catch up on his sleep I wouldn t be angry and say Darn your old business anyway You think more of your office than you do of me I d try to understand and hand out sympathy instead of complaints and understanding instead of tears and pouts

A little understanding goes a long way with a man and it s the girl who understands—or pretends she understands—who gets and holds her man

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER SIXTY-THREE

It was very late when the Greely limousine drew up at the Hinckle's impressive door, and a pale and bedraggled Daphne got out and climbed the old, familiar front stairs. Very late—but not too late for Mrs. Spellman to get on one elbow in her bed, and make it all in.

Long after Daphne had fallen into a fitful sleep she lay there wide awake wondering what she would tell Mrs. Halliday tomorrow. "And a chauffeur, Halliday you. With a cap. You could send him from the way he slammed the door what he thought of her. I always said, I always said, If a lady is a lady she gets respect. Men can always tell . . .

But Daphne was beyond caring what anybody thought. She lived in a nightmare of her own. "And I used to wish things would happen," she thought despondently. "I used to think it would be heaven to marry Ralph McKevitt . . . I used to think Allan was nothing—and Ralph was everything . . . I used to envy Crystal because he liked her . . . and now I'd give everything in the world if she had him!"

At that moment Crystal's worldly possessions were at their lowest ebb. She had even sold some of her clothes to get a little ready money—but such as they were, she would have given them all for another chance at Ralph. Upon Cockleburr, from the prosperous spender, had turned into the penurious lover, over night. His wife—Crystal couldn't forgive herself for not having made sure about that affair—returned unexpectedly from a two year's sojourn in Moscow. Instantly Cockleburr's whole manner changed. His little fiction about platonic affection for the beautiful little girl from the country vanished. His wholesale invitations to dinners and shows also stopped. There were several weeks when Crystal hardly saw him at all.

"Oh if I only had someone to advise me!" she mourned, pacing back and forth in the narrow space of the bizarre studio apartment she had come to hate. "If only Mama was like other mothers! The right kind of a mother can do everything for a girl. You need background. If I had a decent background he wouldn't dare treat me like that! But when a man finds a girl all alone in town, without any people of her own of course he thinks he can do anything! It's all mama's fault. If she had managed right we'd be rich.

"We ought to be living on the orchard property yet, with house parties, and wonderful men visiting, and we could if she hadn't got Haines to squander everything. Then I'd show them—I'd show them the kind of match I could make! But here, all by myself what chance have I got!"

What chance indeed, with a stack of bills a foot high, and collectors banging on the door at all hours?

She made it her business to see Mrs. Cockleburr, though it meant hours of patient waiting in the lobby of the hotel. At last she saw them together, fat Gideon looking yellower and more like a garden slug than ever, and a tall, very masculine looking woman with horn rimmed glasses, and common sense shoes.

"It ought to be easy to get him to divorce that!" she decided, and she patted his little fat hand, and gazed soulfully into his little pig eyes while he told her how unhappy his married life had been, and how his wife, who was interested in nothing but politics and temperance, never understood him.

"That's why you mean so much to me, my dear," he said. "You know how I am, beauty loving. All for the nice things in life. One little evening with you, my dear, means more to me than I can tell you—"

"But, darling, you never take me out any more!"

"Why only last night we had dinner—"

"Yes, at that old chop house I mean not anywhere nice, Gideon—"

"But, my dear, I couldn't compromise you by taking you to public places where we would be recognized!"

"Aren't you afraid of compromising me by staying here then?"

But try as she might, she could not get the best of him in an argument, and she couldn't get him to consider an immediate divorce. "Some day, when I'm free," he would say, but it was always "some day"—never now.

She gathered that it was Mrs. Cockleburr who had the money, and was again holding the purse-strings, for since her return his generous gifts ceased. For once in her life Crystal was completely outwitted.

If it had been only Cockleburr it wouldn't have been so bad. But Avery Woodward was gone and even Ralph who had seemed so safe, was slipping away.

"I'm unlucky, I am!" she would tell herself, staring into the mirror, with gloomy, critical eyes. "It isn't my fault. What chance has a girl all alone, without any money or anything? If Mama hadn't been so darn selfish, I might have had a chance.

"If she'd take my advice and get a good rooming house she might make good yet—but she won't."

That was another thing to worry about. Adelina's letters which no longer came on black bordered paper, were filled with accounts of conquests and beauty treatments.

"A certain realtor here admires me very much. Of course, being a prominent man, and me so recently widowed, he has not made any offer yet. He was wonderful to me at the Whist Tournament. I wore my pink crepe backed satin, and had a paper curl and a special facial at the Wonder Beauty Salon. You ought to try the new Sunshine and Roses skin food they put out . . ."

Sometimes Crystal threw the letter into the wastebasket unread. Adelina's complacent faith in her ability to get another husband was sickening. "Imagine her—at her age. She ought to salt down her money, and get to work. She needn't think she can come and sponge on me when she's broke!"

There were even times—though they didn't come very often—when Crystal thought seriously of herself getting work. Just what she didn't know. Selling antiques in an art shop perhaps. Or some sort of stage work. . . But it was all very indefinite, and difficult, and she never thought about it very long.

When she got worried and despondent over money matters she usually took a hot bath with plenty of perfumed bath salts, and went to bed and slept. A love story and a box of chocolates helped too. Curled up on the chaise lounge in a kimono she could read and yawn, and nibble by the hour—forgetful of the bills.

So it was a real surprise to her when the long-suffering apartment house manager told her she would have to pay or get out.

"Of course," she said. "I'll have it for you in a day or two, I've been a little short. But I have money coming—"

He eyed her morosely. "You're two months behind, Miss Garroty. Rent is supposed to be paid in advance. I'll have to have it by tomorrow night or—"

"Or what?" she demanded coldly.

The man twisted a diamond ring on his finger. He was really sorry for Crystal, but business is business . . . "Well, I can't keep anyone in here who can't pay," he said. "I could rent this place tomorrow for more than I'm getting. It's quite a place for a young lady alone to keep up . . . er, why don't you move and get a less expensive place?"

A less expensive place! . Crystal seethed over the idea after he had gone. What did he take her for? Did he think she would live in one of those two by four holes with a wall bed, and a kitchenette?

She went back to the mirror, and began to make up. Slowly, carefully, stopping every few minutes to scrutinize the results. Her profile vaguely worried her . . . that fullness under the chin . . . not a double chin of course . . . "I'll have to get an astringent," she decided. "What was that tissue cream Mama said was so good?" .

Her spirits rose as she darkened her long blond lashes, and reddened the cupid's bow of her mouth. The rent was forgotten. "A pretty girl doesn't have to worry," she thought. "Something will turn up!"

DIGNIFIED CHARM

An interesting and smart version of youthful styling for the woman of average full figure, expressing dignified charm, is illustrated in chic combination of plain and printed transparent velvet. The surplice closing bodice, and low placed circular flare attached to hipyoke with a dip-in-the-front, accents its slender line. To add touch of femininity, it uses smart fagoting as finish for edge of circular skirt, novel cuffs and applied bands of bodice. Inverted tucks narrow the shoulders. It will make up very attractively in lustrous black crepe satin, using dull side for hipyoke, applied bands and cuffs. Crepe silk, canton crepe, sheer woolen and velveteen are other fabrics suitable for practical daytime wear. It's surprising how easily it is made, as seen in miniature diagrams. Style No. 2634 is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

FRIDAY! No more school this week! I was so sorry that when school let out I went down the stairs war-hooting like an Indian. Just when I got outside and Jubilee was jumping up on me and we were all looking around to see if there was anyone to play any tricks on or anything, I heard my name called and there was the teacher leaning out of the window and telling me to come upstairs. So I went up and the teacher told me that little boys were not supposed to holler inside of the school building and that I might go to my seat and think it over for half an hour. So then she went to her desk and sat down and went to reading something and I looked at the Lost Bag of Tripe who was the only other one being kept in because he had painted around his eyes with red ink to scare Mugh's wife, and I was poring some ink on my sponge and was going to throw it at him when Feeble came rushing in and said to the teacher that my mother wants me. So the teacher said to me that I could go, and I made up a face at the Lost Bag of Tripe and slunk out.

When me and Feeble got outside the bunch had went so that there was only her and me and Jubilee, and I said, "What does my mother want me for?" and Feeble looked at me kinda funny and said, "I have often wondered." I thought about that a while but there wasn't any sense to it, so I asted her if my mother did want me, sure enough, and she told me that she did. She said that every fella's mother wants him, and then she tagged me and skun out and I didn't catch her till she had ran into my yard and around back of the house. Just then my mother hollered at me to come and go to the store for her, and to take Annablle Lee along because a little fresh air would do her good. So my mother bundled Annabelle Lee up and gave her to Feeble and Feeble set on my play and I pulled them both to the store and back. When I went in my grandfather opened the door for us, and he said, "By gravy, I looked out of the window and saw you two coming and I thought it was some man and woman coming to call with their little baby!" And Feeble said to him, "I saw you looking out of the window, and I thought we got to the wrong place," and when he asted her how come she would think that, she told him that she had went to the zoological gardens and she thought she was back there and a monkey was looking through the bars at her. Then my grandfather laughed so hard we could see his chewing tobacco, and my aut gave Feeble a cookie, and we went and slid. Feeble ain't got any respect for the aged. Or anything.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Marion Reaches New School

"Oh! Oh! Mother! Auntie Madge! There's the tower! Look! Over this side in the hollow! There's Whitney! Isn't it marvelous with the sun shining on it? Can we go faster, Auntie Madge? I want to be one of the first girls there if I can."

"Not down this grade, Marion," I said, "with all those curves ahead of us. If we ever should tip over the side here we wouldn't stop rolling until we landed at the gate of your school, and I'm afraid you wouldn't be presentable to your head mistress."

Marion giggled. "And she's an awful crank on personal appearance, even if she is the best head mistress in the world," she commented. "So I won't ask you to go faster. But I sure would like to fly down there. I don't believe I ever was so happy in my life. Oh, I don't mean that," she amended loyally. "I'm happier getting home to you, Mums. And don't think I'm happy because I want to get away from home. I'm just torn apart. I don't want to leave you, and yet I'm crazy to get to the school."

I could not see her face or Lillian's, for both were in the back seat, while I, at the wheel, was letting the car coast down the wonderful, wide boulevard, a marvel of engineering achievement which had conquered one of the mountains surrounding Sackettsville and made driving over it a keen pleasure instead of a nervous dread.

Marion Reassured

The village and the school building in the center, dominating it, were framed in trees, gorgeous now in autumnal coloring, as were the oaks and maples mingled with evergreens covering the mountain sides. The town lay in an irregular oval of rolling land surrounded on all sides by mountains—low, not to be compared to their brothers of the Rockies, but most impressive to a lowlander and lover of heights like myself.

The beauty of the view before me made me oblivious for an instant to the emotional problem which I knew Marion's joy at returning to school had brought to her mother. But as I realized that Marion's appeal had been followed by silence, that Lillian had not yet replied to the child's tremulous questioning, I gripped my wheel tensely, while every nerve I possessed tautened.

Was it possible that my old friend was so obsessed by her jealous maternal love as to refuse her young daughter the assurance she craved.

Then I heard a loving murmur, "My own girl!" And I realized that Lillian's first answer had been to draw her child into her arms. With a mental apology I heard her add emphatically:

Emotional Paradoxes

"Of course I understand, darling, for I feel exactly the same way. I shall miss you terribly, but at the same time I should feel that I wasn't doing the best thing for you if you dreaded returning to school. But, tell me, do all the girls feel this way? I thought most girls hated——"

"Some of 'em do," Marion said. "They're just horrid about coming back. But they're not homesick either. They just don't want to stop their good times. But most of the girls love it the way I do. They don't feel that way at other schools," she went on loyally. "Just this one. It's the best ever. Oh, now we're over the mountain. Auntie Madge. We're almost there. We'll go to the hotel first, won't we? I want to change my dress before I go over to school."

"The girls saw this one last year, I suppose," Lillian said with a little laugh.

"That isn't——" Marion began indignantly, but she was too honest to finish as she had begun.

"Yes, it is the reason," she admitted a bit shamefully. "But, Mums, if ever you want to wear your new things it's on the first day when all the rest are sporting theirs."

"Of course, my baby," Lillian soothed, and then, under Marion's direction, I sent the car down the tree-lined main street of Sackettsville until we drew up at a rambling picturesque old house with the sign "Sackettsville Inn." Marion was out of the door almost before I had stopped the car, while from the veranda Carolyn rushed down to meet her. Ronald was but a few steps behind his sister.

AFTER OPERATIONS

"I was three times under an operation and I was very weak and nervous and could not eat. I suffered for ten years. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my husband bought me a bottle. I felt a little better and he bought me two more. I had the Compound in my home for two years and took it all the time. Now I feel strong and can do anything."—Mrs. A. Michalk, 5443 Mitchell Ave., Detroit, Michigan.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most apt to be; crowded cars, public meeting places, warm, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers. Breathe through the nose.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrous fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take every precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching cold. Any cold may be the forerunner of flu. Take Bayer Aspirin at the first sign of a cold and you can ward it off. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at first sign of sore throat as this will remove the infection.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of the flu, call your doctor.

BUSINESS SCANDAL MAY INVOLVE MANY

Sweeping Grand Jury Investigation Begun by U. S. Attorney

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Following complaints made by scores of business men, six federal judges and fleeced women investors, a sweeping grand jury investigation was begun today by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle into the administration of bankruptcies. As the scandal assumed wider ramifications this morning, a prominent lawyer, a former Republican candidate for congress and a federal court messenger were involved, and it was hinted that a police lieutenant and "high officials" would be drawn into the case.

Merrill E. Gates, Jr., lawyer and social registerite, was taken into custody late last night. He is the son of the late Merrill E. Gates, president of Amherst college when President Coolidge and Ambassador Dwight Morrow were students there.

The inquiry centers around David Steinhardt, fugitive lawyer and former candidate for congress. He is alleged to have absconded with from $500,000 to $2,000,000 given him by credulous investors in the hope of receiving huge dividends. Steinhardt is under indictment charged with embezzling court funds, funds belong to bankrupts, while a receiver in bankruptcy, appointed by the federal court. Many women were drawn into his "investment pool," a get-rich-quick scheme.

Max Pinner, a federal court messenger and a cousin of Steinhardt, cut his throat last night when confronted with evidence that he had been paid $100,000 by Steinhardt to reveal official secrets. His salary was only $1,800. Federal men pointed out that a messenger carrying decisions from the judge's chambers to the federal building might be in a position to cause reaping of huge profits.

SPECIAL RAILROAD RATES ARRANGED

Half-Fare To Be Fixed for Return Trip from Cleveland Road Show

Special rates will be in effect on all railroads leading to Cleveland during the week of the Cleveland road show starting Jan. 14, it was announced by officials here today.

Provided there are 250 persons present at the show the roads will offer a half fare return trip to all persons attending the show from here. As officials of the show expect not less than 20,000 people, including representatives from 20 nations it is certain that reduced rates will be in effect.

Full fare will be paid by persons going to the show but a certificate will be given with the ticket and when they purchase their return ticket a reduction of one-half on the price will be allowed.

We can be fond of an infidel for himself, but it fatigues us to hear him defend his unfaith. All the arguments are so plaguey threadbare.

EX-MAYOR INDICTED

Lancaster People Charged With Distributing Defamatory Literature

LANCASTER, Jan 11—Charged with distributing literature of a defamatory character during the recent campaign, former Mayor H. A. Alspach and 14 other persons today had been indicted by the Fairfield county grand jury.

The 15, including two election judges are charged "with causing to be printed and distributed literature of a defamatory character preceding the November election." During that period, considerable discussion was aroused in the county by the circulars which labeled certain candidates unfit for office.

The "bad literature campaign" was said to have been headed by the "Fairfield Protestant association."

BANDIT PAIR AGAIN KIDNAPS CAR CREW

Intoxicated Holdup Men Continue Their Pranks; Get $100 This Time

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—Flinging the scent of adventure into the face of two intoxicated bandits, automobile laws Wednesday night took the crew of a street car for a ride and robbed them of $100 and continued their activities throughout last night and early this morning and took the crew of another street car for a ride. The latter "bit-sized" gave them an auto and $100 in cash.

The bandits stole the auto of J. I. Beckett from the front of his home and used the car in their escapade.

The victims of the bandits' prank last night were Conductor William Barr and Motorman Paul Schmidt.

Their description of the ride was the same offered by the victims of the tour Wednesday night. The bandits, the crew said, did their best to entertain them throughout the ride, telling them of gruesome exploits and planning a filling station robbery.

When another machine drew near the bandit car, one of the thugs kicked out the window of the small sedan and blazed merrily away at the other cab. At the same time the driver of the bandit car lost control and the car plunged into a ditch. The crew was forced to right it and push it out of the mud. Two automatic pistols leveled by the inebriates speeded the work.

After evicting their kidnaped passengers from the car, the bandits sped away. As was reported Wednesday night, at frequent intervals the bandits "tipped" a liquor bottle.

About midnight, the bandits accosted Henry Stonebercer, a filling station attendant on the North Side, lifted him bodily from the station and rifled the cash drawer of $65.

Police have begun a determined search for the men.

ISSUES DECREE

Premier Startles Jugo-Slavia; Uses Parliament for Barracks

VIENNA, Jan. 11—Continuing his determined reorganization of the Jugo-Slavian government, Gen. Peter Zivkovic, premier under the dictatorship of King Ferdinand, today issued another startling decree, according to dispatches from Belgrade.

The decree ordered that the Skupshtina (Jugo-Slavian parliament) was to be used as soldiers' barracks in the future.

It also provided that police officers were to be replaced by army officers and that trade unions were to be dissolved.

All political party organizations were ordered dissolved yesterday.

WINNING FIGHT

Group of English Doctors Near Success in King's Illness

LONDON, Jan. 11—A group of English doctors treating King George are winning the most dramatic fight against illness and threatened death in the history of medicine.

The king's improvement has progressed to such an extent that it is universally believed he will recover unless there is an unforeseen relapse of a very serious nature.

The achievement of the doctors is a triumph for modern medicine. King George was virtually drawn back from the brink of death by application of new methods of treatment, scientific care and his own will to live.

CAREY LUTHERAN SOCIETY MEETS

NEVADA, Jan. 11—Mrs. Clymina Markley was hostess at a regular meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Lutheran church Tuesday afternoon. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Hattie Fleming in February.

Peppy Ingenue of Ross Players Gives Up Trying To Be Taller and Dignified

Alma Coble Decides To Be "Just Herself" and Audiences Are Satisfied

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

SHE can build herself up to five feet two, but her eyes aren't blue, so she won't fit the lines of the popular song of several years ago.

Alma Coble, ingenue of the Myrtyl Ross Players at the Grand theater, is as peppy an individual as the modern era has supplied to date, and runs a close second to Billy Dale of the same company, when it comes to the question of who talks the fastest and for the longest period of time.

One of the big drawbacks in the theatrical profession, shortness of stature, has been a trial of her everyday life. How to be dignified, when one isn't quite five feet tall, and to dress with the idea of giving height to one's figure formerly demanded much of Miss Coble's attention. Not so long ago she gave the problem up entirely and now is satisfied to be just herself, and that seems to be perfectly satisfactory with her audiences.

Her Favorites

It may interest women readers to know that this woman, who delights in playing roles like those of Jennie, in "Applesauce," and the 12-year-old daughter in "The Family Upstairs," has Rubenstein's creams on her dresser, that she dotes on keen-looking pajamas and that the blue Chinese suit she is wearing in the prologue of "East Is West," are really hers and were brought to her from abroad by a friend.

Miss Coble's name may be added to the roster of the people who have made Ohio the famous state that it is, for she was born in Troy, O., not more than 95 miles from here, a certain number of years ago. And that's where the age-old maxim that women won't tell their ages, cropped out in the modern Alma.

She laughingly refused to announce for publication how old she is, but left it to the reporter's passion for mathematics to figure it out.

Here's the material she gave me to figure with and I hand it on to you, having reached my own deduction and hoping that you may too: Alma was what is known as "bright," in school, graduating when she was 17. She worked a year and then began a study of the stage, which makes her birthdays to that point, 18. Since that time she has been eight or nine years on the stage. There you are, and no one can say that they know for sure how old she is, for it isn't positive whether it is eight or nine years since she took up her profession.

Plays Under Family Name

Coble is her family name and it's well known in the town from which she came. Alma is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Coble and has one brother. As far as she knows, there hasn't been another in the family, on either maternal or paternal sides, who ever had a longing for the stage, but as far back as Alma can remember, she's always had that urge for the theatrical.

At a tender age, when to the child, all actors are individuals of exceptional eminence a "rep" show visited Troy for a week's stay during fair time. At every performance, by hook or crook, Alma Coble was there, generally on the front seat gaping at the leading man with her heart in her eyes, longing for one look from him. The cast announced that on the last day they would hold a public reception on the stage after the matinee. For days preceding this Alma busied her brain, trying to think up some salutation so startling and illuminating that it would set her above the common rabble. Came the great day, the hour and the moment, and still the child had thought of nothing impressive for the ears of the leading man. At the last moment, she turned and fled, heartbroken because she couldn't think of a suitable greeting and not wanting to be classed with the others in the party.

Practical Experience

Miss Coble, aside from being an excellent actress, is also intimately acquainted with the business end of vaudeville, having worked in offices in Dayton for a period of time and in a business capacity for vaudeville circuits in several larger cities. She keeps a bound scrap-book of the 10-paged programs she planned and helped publish at one of the theaters. Several of the programs at the Grand Theater have been prepared under her direction.

This young woman who has had such interesting experiences and seen so much of the United States since she took up acting as a profession, was a student in the commercial department of the Troy High school, when she graduated. Latin was the only subject she ever attacked with an intent to study, the other subjects being a matter of routine business with her.

One of her personal habits is the wearing of blue, red and black, a combination of all three, or just two of the colors. Black is a favorite color, together with navy blue. After a stay of some time in one city, a friend approached her one day with the news that it was the first dress of any color except these three that she'd worn during her entire stay there. These colors are all becoming to her, though, and what is becoming women know they should wear.

Photographs Interesting

There is a suggestion of heart interest in several of the pictures Miss Coble has but which she doesn't display. She admits that there might be, but quickly changes the subject to explain the numerous other autographed pictures in the room, all of which have some memory or former theatrical acquaintanceship attached.

Alma Coble may be summed up as a woman of considerably more than average intelligence, fun-loving and generous. Her generosity carried her away to such an extent that she risked breaking the continuity of a set of books forever by lending one to the inquiring reporter.

HARDING OPENS N. C. O. SKED TONIGHT

LOCAL DEFENSE IS CHANGED TO MEET MANSFIELD ATTACK

Contest Will Go Far Toward Determining Championship of League

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

TONIGHT Coach Compton's Red and Black basketeers of Harding high will put on the do or die role in the North Central Ohio cage league when the Marion-ites invade enemy territory and tangle with the Mansfield five at Mansfield.

Members of the squad will make the trip to Mansfield by bus leaving Marion at 5:30 o'clock, it was announced.

A week of hard practice was concluded last night with a light workout at the Harding high school gym. Coach Compton is apparently satisfied with the showing made by his quintet in practice. His regular lineup will start the game with Roush and Walker in the forward berths, Gillis at center and Castner and McAdams as guards. There may be a change at center if Gillis' failure to get the tip from Mansfield handicaps the defense of Marion to too great an extent. In that case Lockwood will probably be called from the bench. In the event Gillis has been favored as the starting center.

Harding's chances in the contest that is expected to go a long way toward determining the N. C. O. championship this year will depend on the new defense that has been worked up by the coaches by Coach Compton.

Mansfield is a short shot team getting most of its baskets from the zone within the foul line. No long shooting artists are included in the Mansfield coached lineup. Harding will use a zone defense lined up in such a way that will have a tendency to check short shots. If this fails to function then Harding faces almost certain defeat.

The offense of Harding has not shown a great deal of strength this season. McAninch should be able to break through for more than his share of baskets. His scoring in games early this season has not been so hot.

Marion's long shots will probably not be so successful in view of the man-for-man defense used by Mansfield. The Mansfield defense gets into action as soon as the ball is within shooting distance.

As time for the game approaches the dope still favors Mansfield although the writer would be inclined to give Harding somewhat of an even break. The outcome of the game depends much on the "ifs". Harding can win if its defense accomplishes its aim and if Marion has developed any scoring power.

Card Completed For Eagles' Boxing Show Here Monday Night

Wesleyan Five, Victorious in 9 Starts, Opens Conference Season With Ohio U.

DELAWARE, Jan. 11—With Ohio university as its foe, Ohio Wesleyan's undefeated basketball team which has already numbered nine strong opponents among its victims, will open its Buckeye Athletic conference schedule here Saturday night. The Bishops enter the race as outstanding favorites on the strength of the havoc they have wrought among outstanding teams of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan in their series of preliminary game.

The Bishops not only took Ohio State into camp in easy style 36 to 20 but also have a victory to their credit over Michigan State college, which in turn handed an early season lacing to the University of Michigan, now one of the three undefeated leaders in the Big Ten title race. Michigan State college had also defeated Penn State and Cornell.

Despite the fact that Coach Detrick has used his second team a great deal in preliminary games in order to strengthen his reserve material, the Bishops have scored 377 points to 216 for their opponents. This gives the Bishops an average of more than 40 points per game while their opponents have been scoring an average of 24 points.

Two outstanding reasons can be given for the strength of the present Ohio Wesleyan basketball team. The first is found in the fact that the Bishops have eight veteran varsity players this season. The second is in the strength of the Bishop second team which affords Coach Detrick excellent replacement material.

Results of Ohio Wesleyan's games to date have been as follows: O. W. U. 36-Ohio State 20; O. W. U. 52-Cedarville 18; O. W. U. 44-Goodyear 28; O W. U. 41-Kent State Normal 19; O. W. U. 50-St. John's 17; O. W. U. 52-Western State Normal 34; O W. U. 36-Manchester college 31; O. W. U. 34-Michigan State college 28; O W. U. 38-Dayton 21.

GANS WILL APPEAR IN MAIN GO EVENT WITH NORB SMITH

32 Rounds Scheduled; Snyder To Fight in Semi-Final

WITH the card completed and the advance sale of tickets under way, the Eagles 32-round boxing show at the lodge's temple Monday night promises to be one of the most successful staged in Marion for the past several years.

Local promoters have put the finishing touches to the card adding two preliminary events that will take up 10 rounds. The first event on the card will get under way at 8:15 o'clock. Roy Abel, it was announced, will the handle the events as referee.

Featuring the card will be the main go between California Joe Gans and Norb Smith of Akron. This bout is slated for eight rounds at 145 pounds although it would not be surprising if the bout went a shorter distance.

Gans has just about everything that a boxer needs. According to reports, he is an aggressive fighter packing a mean wallop. He is smart, using both hands and feet cleverly weaving away from punches and feinting with his body to coax opponents into leading.

Norb Smith is no slouch of a fighter. He has had 37 fights in his career and has scored 10 knockouts. Although Gans is favored to take the decision, Smith will give him a great run for his money.

Ray Snyder, reported to be better than ever, is listed in the semi-final of eight rounds. He will clash with Joe Bradshaw of Newark.

Three preliminary events have been carded. In the curtain raiser Ed Fanning of Marion will go four rounds at 208 pounds with George Reams of Mt. Vernon. The second bout will bring Wildcat Aukings of Mt. Vernon and Charles Walters of Columbus together in a six-round affair. These boys fight at 135 pounds. Dicky Mitchell of Findlay is scheduled to go six rounds with George Boychan of Newark in the third event.

M'LARNIN BACK

Fighter Faces Greatest Test of Career with Glick

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—"Baby Face" Jimmy McLarnin comes back to Madison Square Garden tonight in the greatest test of his career. He faces Joe Glick, the Brooklyn "old clothes man," in a 10-round bout.

To Jimmy, victory means the regaining of his former position among lightweights. Tonight's bout also gives him a chance to prove that his knockout at the hands of Ray Miller was a fluke. Defeat means he passes out of the headliner class and must begin anew.

The winner may be matched with champion Sammy Mandell.

N. Y. YANKEES BUY CLUB IN BLUE RIDGE AS FARM

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Officials of the New York Yankees today confirmed a report that they had purchased the Chambersburg club of the Blue Ridge league. Tom Clark, former Cincinnati catcher, will manage the Virginia "farm," it was said.

FINDLAY WINS

FINDLAY, Jan. 11—In a game filled with thrills, Findlay college won, 30 to 32, from Defiance on its home floor here last night. It was the first conference game for both teams. They are members of the Northwest conference. Defiance made a rally in the last few minutes of play, which nearly tied the score.

MATCH STARTS

Walter Hagen Favored To Win Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 11—Play in the fourth annual $10,000 Los Angeles open tournament officially opened today on the picturesque Riviera country club course.

It was an ideal day for championship golf as the early starters of the field of 330 entrants began the first 18 holes of the tedious 72 hole grind, which will be concluded late Sunday.

Walter Hagen, long considered the peer of all professional golfers, remained a heavy favorite to seek the title, now held by MacDonald Smith, veteran New York instructor who won the local championship last year at Wilshire.

Horton Smith, "the Joplin kid," is a dark horse.

OHIO BOBCATS WIN OVER MARIETTA QUINT, 37-24

ATHENS, Jan. 11—Ohio university Bobcats gave the Pioneers from Marietta a severe trouncing here last night, thus successfully completing preparation for the Buckeye Athletic conference basketball race. The Green and White gained the lead early and held it throughout. Marietta never threatened very closely, and the game ended 37 to 24.

Williams, Ohio guard, was the high point man of the game, getting eight buckets and a foul. Trott starred at forward for the visitors with 11 points.

GARDEN HEADS SEEK RICKARD CONTRACTS

Sharkey Not Likely To Receive $100,000 Purse; Miami Brawl Looms as Flop with Officials of Corporation Against It

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Officials of the Madison Square Garden Corp., wishing to do the right thing by "dear old Tex," undoubtedly will look long and earnestly through Rickard's private papers for "documentary evidence" of his Stribling-Sharkey guarantees and then, having turned up none, they will render the Stein song from Iguatz the Iceman, entitled:

"Hurrah! We Can Find Nothing."

It will be a fine, brave thing to do. They will be crushed, desolated. But these are men who know how to suffer secretly. With great self-control, they will be able to mask their true feelings under a smiling exterior and, if the smile I'm talking about happens to be a laugh, you will know that the man in question is practicing self-control in a big way.

No $100,000 Guarantee

It all probably means that there will be no $100,000 guarantee for Jack Sharkey, if ever there was such, which probably means that there will be no Jack Sharkey, which possibly means that there will be no fight. Colonel Hammond and William F. Carey have declared for standing behind any "documentary" obligation incurred by an officer of the corporation but, if they aren't convinced that none exists, then they must have been talking about the high cost of sleeve garters when they called Sharkey in on the rug the day of the funeral.

The situation narrows itself down to a question of how soon a new policy of strict conservatism may be instituted at the garden. The instituting in question can start somewhat sooner than immediately without being premature, as far as many of these men are concerned, and if Rickard has done nothing to obligate them, that will be one of life's misfortunes under which they will contrive to bear up bravely. They let Rickard run wide open with his gambling tendencies in promotion because that was "in character" and part of the script. But he couldn't make all of them like it.

Carey May Be Head

One of them who didn't and never was slushed about saying so was Mr. Carey and it may be of interest at this time that this gentleman generally is expected to become executive head of the corporation at an early date. He always fought Rickard of those lavish guarantees, even when the receipts seemed to justify the promoter's judgment, and when the Tunney-Heeney fight proceeded to make no money at an awful rate, Mr. Carey was not alone in his pained disapproval. He seemed to think in fact, that this was not the kind of thing that ought to be encouraged.

Unless I have been misinformed, this gentleman is the active though silent head of the Garden corporation right at this moment and, unless I mistake his intentions, there will be no guarantees at all for the Sharkey-Stribling fight, which ought to mean that there will be no fight.

As for Dempsey's innocuous statement, it was the only thing to do under the circumstances, since it is understood that he has no great wish to fight under the present auspices at the Garden and there seems to be nobody else that appeals to him, either. Another good reason for the indefinite character of his announcement is that the man doesn't know his own mind from one minute to another and the thing he says today simply doesn't go tomorrow. There being no necessity for haste, therefore, the entire matter can be pushed ahead until such time as a show down is indicated.

GALION MAN HEARD IN BELL PHONE CASE

Testimony of Frank R. McBerty Tends To Show Materials' Cost Excessive

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—Public hearing in the statewide investigation into the telephone rate situation swung into its second day before the state utilities commission here today with the continuation of the examination of Frank R. McBerty, president of the Northern Electric Manufacturing Co. of Galion, who is recognized as one of the world's leading authorities on central office equipment of telephone exchanges.

This was the second day of the present hearing, which is scheduled to adjourn late this afternoon. It marks the continuation of the investigation which was launched by the commission Oct. 11, 1921. The most conspicuous result of the probe, it was said, will be the determination of rates to be collected by the Bell Telephone Co. which controls the larger part of the telephone service in the state and provides telephone facilities to approximately 550,000 persons.

Frequent Objections

Frequent objection by W. H. Thompson, Indianapolis, attorney for the Bell company, marked the examination of McBerty. A. M. Catland, special attorney for the state, conducted the questioning of McBerty.

Cross-examination of McBerty by the company's attorneys will not be held at this hearing, indications plainly showed.

McBerty's testimony tends to show that prices paid by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. for properties obtained from the Western Electric Co., an associate concern, were excessive.

Close followers of the case at the hearing today, were confident that a decision by the commission on the tentative valuation of the Bell concern's property for rate-making purposes will be reached soon.

DRYS DISAPPOINTED

Canada Refuses To Make Liquor Pact With U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Prohibition officials were disappointed today, at the well nigh complete failure of the Canadian-American liquor conference.

The American delegation, headed by Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, went to Ottawa in hopes of persuading the Canadians to refuse clearance papers to liquor-laden ships calling at American ports, but the Canadians were cold to the proposal, and consequently the American delegates are returning to Washington virtually empty-handed.

"Naturally we are disappointed," said Seymour Lowman, prohibition director, "but we are not through yet."

Witnesses were still being questioned in the Heldman case today. About 40 witnesses were summoned by the state, including 10 from Lorain where the Heldmans formerly lived.

HAS OLD RECEIPTS

Taxes on 78 Acres of Land in 1830 Was Less Than 62 Cents

MT. GILEAD, Jan. 11—Mrs. J. C. Wright, a resident of Harmony township, revealed some interesting old manuscripts here recently owned by her father, C. W. Heskett. Some of these antedate Morrow county itself.

She has in her possession tax receipts for 78½ acres of land lying about one mile east of Fulton. This land was purchased by her father from Samuel Waltermire and he handed over the tax receipts dated in 1830 and 1831. The amount of tax due on the 78 acres of land for the year 1830 was 61 cents and eight mills. He was also obliged to pay 45 cents and six mills on chattel property valued at $18. The tax was paid to Joseph Patrick, treasurer of Delaware county.

She also has in her possession two teachers' certificates dated 1850 and 1853. The first of these was signed by one party, W. S. Donaldson, but in 1853 a board of examiners had been named and this one was signed by W. N. Nichcomb, J. C. Miles and I. A. Beebe

THIRD MARRIAGE IS BELIEVED MOTIVE

Wood Reported To Have Considered Rewedding His First Wife

DETROIT, Jan. 11—Mrs. Grace M. Wood's belief that Ralph A. Wood, 33, wealthy real estate operator, intended to remarry his first wife will be one of several motives advanced by the state in its prosecution of the middle-aged second wife who stands charged with a conspiracy to murder him, it was reported today.

One of the alleged conspirators, Ambrose Haggerty, 25-year-old gunman, was shot to death by Wood and detectives who had been told of a plot by Cecil Holt, 25, an accountant, who said Mrs. Wood had hired him and two other men to dispose of Ralph, 15 years her junior. A score of Detroit, Wyandotte and state officers surprised the gunmen when they tried to murder Wood in his little real estate office at Wyandotte, fashionable Detroit suburb.

The first Mrs. Wood, Blanche, 30 and strikingly pretty, lives in Grand Ledge, Mich., with her two children. She told authorities that Wood intended to remarry her just as soon as he obtained a divorce from his second wife in Wayne county circuit court.

The first Mrs. Wood said Grace Wood became infatuated with Wood six years ago and that she paid her, Blanche, "a lot of money" to divorce him when a suit was threatened.

"She knew she was going to lose him," Blanche said today. She expressed sympathy for her divorced husband and the hope that he would not be subjected to adverse publicity.

GUNMAN SHOT

Death Ends Domestic Quarrel, Police Battle

TOLEDO, Jan 11—An alleged gunman is dead and two policemen are suffering minor bullet wounds as the result of a gun battle here last night when police were called to quell what was believed to have been a domestic quarrel.

The wounded patrolmen are Charles Dolley, shot below the heart, and Ben Rube, shot in the hand. The slain man is unidentified.

Michael Eunsen reported to police that he could not gain admission to his home. The two officers went with him and the shooting began as soon as they arrived at Eunsen's house. Dolley was downed by the gunman's first shot. The next struck Rube in the hand. Rube went after the gunman, whose following shots went wild. All trace was lost of the fleeing man for some time, then his body was found a short distance from the house. There were five bullet wounds in the body.

NET EARNINGS MAY SEND UP DIVIDENDS

Several Important Railroad Revisions Scheduled as Result of More Business

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Several important upward revisions of railroad stock dividends are on the cards for the early part of 1929, mostly as the result of the satisfactory increases in net earnings over the last two or three years.

This is of special importance to the long-range holders of stocks of the transportation companies who are more interested in their dividend checks than in the fluctuations of stock prices. It is also of interest to traders in the railroad shares, who have seen their stocks virtually stagnant while the industrial speculative favorites have been dancing hilariously on the tape, reeling and rocking all the way from 10 to 200 points.

A few weeks ago the directors of the New Haven railroad restored the common stock of that company to the dividend column, thus writing a brilliant chapter in one of the most disastrous and distasteful railroad episodes in the whole history of American transportation. An old regime which saddled the road with street car lines and unprofitable steamship enterprises restored the earning power of the road to zero and brought untold hardship upon thousands of thrifty New England holders of the stock. Gradually the road's business was built up, the barnacles removed and its finances rehabilitated.

Within the last four or five years dividend restorations have been made in other well known systems and important developments are expected along similar lines this year.

AFTER WILLAMAN

Alumni Publication Seeks His Appointment as State Coach

Willaman has been first assistant to Dr. John W. Wilce, resigned head football mentor.

The editorial, written by John B. Fullen, alumni secretary, will say in effect: "Willaman rates equally with any coach considered for the job, and should not be dismissed from consideration simply because the athletic board may fear that there are some persons who do not favor his selection."

Dr. Rongetti, former head of Ashland Boulevard hospital, is accused of the death of Loretta Daders, on whom he is alleged to have performed an illegal operation. It is charged he left the girl die by refusing to perform a second operation because she had no money.

Interest in Parking Plan Revived as City Council Prepares To Take Action

Decision on Definite System Expected To Be Made at Next Regular Meeting of Municipal Legislature; Diagonal Parking on Main Thoroughfares Probable

Discussion of Marion's parking problem which has quieted down considerably since the last meeting of city council, is due to be revived soon. The problem will probably be disposed of at the next regular meeting of council.

Recent revival of the parking discussion was brought about by decision of city council to settle for once and for all the system of parking on city streets. Parking became one of the city's burning question when the new paving on West Center st. was opened to traffic.

Discussion recently has brought up the question of whether council members will consider the opinions of city officials, automobile club officers and other citizens, or whether they will be guided solely by their own views on the question.

Results of Interviews

Recently a representative of The Star asked a number of Marion city officials, automobile club officials, a councilman and a banker their opinions as to the most satisfactory means of parking automobiles on city streets. Those whose opinions were sought were T. J. McFarland, fire chief, J. W. Thompson, police chief, George Whyssl, president of the automobile club, B. F. Blake, for 10 years a member of the automobile club traffic commission R. E. Prettyman, president of city council, and Charles E. Merkle, president of the Marion Savings Bank Co.

Two of these, Prettyman and Merkel favored diagonal parking. McFarland, Thompson, Whyssll and Blake were unanimous in favoring parallel parking.

Two Systems Considered

Council will consider two systems diagonal and parallel. Indications are at present that council favors diagonal parking and will finally adopt that system on Main and Center sts. in spite of the preference for parallel parking of the fire and police chiefs, who are perhaps more concerned with traffic and its control than any other persons in the city.

If the attitude of Councilmen Prettyman is any indication of the attitude of the remainder of the body a system of diagonal parking will be instituted on Main and Center sts. and parallel parking on all other streets. This arrangement will not affect the present method in use on Main and Center sts. Prospect and State sts. would be changed from diagonal to parallel by the new system.

C. E. Merkel, the other advocate of diagonal parking, favors that system because it will admit more cars to parking places. But above all Mr. Merkel wants one system adopted and then left alone.

Fire Fighting Problem

Chief McFarland favors parallel parking as an aid in fighting fires. Cars parked parallel to the curb allow more space in the street, thus giving trucks more room in making runs and allowing them to be placed closer to buildings in case of fires. A fire ladder, Chief McFarland points out, can not be used with the truck in the middle of the street.

The constant increase in the number of automobiles has made it necessary to speed up traffic. A greater number of cars must be put through the same space in a given length of time. For these reasons those who have made a study of traffic problems from a traffic standpoint favor parallel parking. In this group could be placed Chief Thompson, Mr. Blake and Mr. Whyssll.

They contend that streets are intended primarily for travel and not for parking. If cars are parked parallel Marion's principal steets would accommodate two lines of traffic in either direction, thus nearly doubling the number of cars passing a point in a given length of time.

SAYS BODY SHOWS YOUTH NOT BEATEN

Marietta Authorities Will Demand Investigation of Mother's Charges

LANCASTER, Jan. 11 — Statements made today by Frank E. Smith, mortician, who prepared the body of Hamilton Jett, 17, for burial, corroborated the denials made by officials of the State Industrial school here, that the boy was not mistreated.

The industrial school authorities declared the boy had not been beaten during his confinement there and that he died of pneumonia. Smith stated that there were no marks indicating mistreatment on the body when he received it.

Washington county authorities at Marietta are investigating the charges made by the boy's mother, Mrs. Henry Jett, to the effect that her son was forced to attend target practice while he was so ill he could not stand; and that he was set upon and beaten when he dropped from exhaustion. Mrs. Jett declares her son told her of those incidences when she visited him here a week before he died.

Jett, who comes from a respected Marietta family, ran away from home last year and was sent to the reformatory from Columbus on forgery charges. It is said he forged a few small checks.

It is understood here that Washington county officials plan to take the case before Governor Donahey, and that C. S. Creighton, Washington county representative to the general assembly, will be asked to use his influence to effect a probe of conditions at the institution.

You'll notice it particularly in cakes and biscuits

SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATTING FLU AND COLDS

Follow These Rules—Do Not Fool With a Cold — Use Tried Safe Methods

Look out for colds—even mild colds in the head and throat.

Don't let them get down into the chest and lungs.

Don't expose yourself to damp or wet weather.

Don't go out if you are feeling sick. Influenza, grippe, pneumonia or other serious sickness often come from colds.

THE DANGER

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, upper and lower bowels regularly. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

Experience of 1918

The experience of the 1918 epidemic showed that one of the best and simplest treatments was to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Why take any chances, why not be prepared to fight off your cold or "flu?"

The right thing to do now is to go to your druggist, get a box of Bulgarian Herb Tea. Kill off your cold. Take it steaming hot twice a week. It will heat up the chilled blood, increase the circulation and rid the bowels and intestines of poisons and germs. Every family will find Bulgarian Herb Tea (purely vegetable) a real blessing to have on hand in this time of need. Keep your system clean all winter.

See your druggist at once. Your health—perhaps your very life—may depend upon taking this simple precaution. Costs but a few cents.

If you have had the flu or a bad cold already, watch out for a recurrence. A cupful of Tea twice a week is your protection against attacks.—Adv.

BREAD and Health

One out of every three children in the U. S. A. is under par physically. So investigations show. There's at least one chance in three that it's your child.

Of course the signs of an under-par condition don't always blink out like a huge electric sign at night—but watch for them. Retarded growth, underweight, skinny, pale, anaemic, no spirit.

A famous children's specialist advises as one form of treatment simple lunches daily at 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

Bread and milk, bread with soup, with cocoa, with stewed fruit, will help transform the malnourished child into a sparkling image of health. Tell the kiddies—

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S DUTTON

A HAMILTON GIBBS brings some real personalities into his recent book, "Harness." One broadcasts a half hearted sigh when a glance through the first few pages proclaim that it is a post war story of a pair who had seen service in the British army trying to adjust themselves after the World conflict, but not decided. It is lifted high and above the run of mine war and post war stories in a clever and most interesting manner by the honorable Gibbs, and is fascinating.

Patricia Wade and Michael Gordon find themselves unable to become adjusted to any element of social life upon their return from the war, as their place has been usurped by a younger generation with entirely different ideas and they seem too young themselves to find entertainment and companionship in the generation just ahead of them. Work they must. Michael because he must earn his livelihood and Patricia because it takes her away from her surroundings every day.

After their marriage and three months of a honeymoon spent in fixing up their cottage in Little Turning over both decide to go to work, Michael to writing and Pat to the stage. The latter, whom one could never at any stage of the game, associate with failure, wins her goal in an apparently short time, while Michael, plodder that he seems, doesn't seem to do so well and gets no breaks at all. The story reaches an unexpected climax while Pat is at the height of her success and the events leading up to it round up an event ful of real pleasureable reading.

PAT'S sister, Sylvia, to whom at the immense age of 10, life is an open book, presents a most modernistic angle to the story while her parents carry one back to a picture of a fast disappearing age.

The story, woven around a group of characters with widely varied occupations and views on life, but still very tolerant and closely bound together in ties of affection, really make one glad Mr. Gibbs wrote it.

A Group of Early Releases

ELSWYTH THANE has just completed a companion novel to her popular 'Riders of the Wind.' 'Cloth of Gold' to be published about the middle of February. Once more she has picked up Ingaresen's daughter and fled to the hot veldt of India. The result is an adventure story which has been called quite as thrilling as its predecessor. 'Cloth of Gold" refers to the mystic golden robes of the goddess Shir Shan. Miss Thane is the wife of William Beebe, scientist, explorer and author.

'Liv' which means Life is Kathleen Coyle's new novel scheduled for publication in April. Liv, a young Norwegian girl with a passion for travel and a desire to know all there is to know of life, goes to Paris. Here she falls in love with a man she cannot marry, sees all there is to see of Parisian Bohemia, decides that she is a misfit and goes home to marry the man who has loved her through her youth. Rebecca West contributes the introduction.

Walter S. Masterson's new mystery tale, "The Green Toad," is down for publication in March.

How to dress, how to talk to them, how to get along with all types and kinds, Jane Johns tells in a little volume called "The Girls Men Marry," to be published in March.

Two Books for Juveniles

THE Junior Book of the Month Club, associated with the Junior League Magazine has selected 'Tales of Wise and Foolish Animals," by Valery Carrick for its February book of the month for the pre-school age, and "A Little Girl of 1900," by Lois Lenski, for the six to nine age. 'Tales of Wise and Foolish Animals' is a charming group of stories from Russian folklore and the latter is the lively story of a little girl who is next to the youngest in a country minister's large family.

Bromfield's New Book Out Apr. 15

LOUIS BROMFIELD'S first book of short stories will appear in his first limited, autographed edition under the title of 'Awake and Rehearse,' April 15. This will be issued simultaneously with the regular cloth edition and will be boxed, each copy numbered and signed by the author.

Inquiries as to how 'Miss Annie Spragg' heroine of Bromfield's new novel 'The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg' got the money to go to Italy have been flooding the offices of the publishers, Bromfield obligingly answered the query from Paris, explaining that she got it from Uriah's life insurance. As it was an accident policy, she got double the amount when he was murdered.

An old man who stays dressy to the end of his days is ever an inspiring sight.

Ritzy Rosalie

© 1929 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved. 1-31

ROSALIE doesn't care for leopards in the flesh but she thinks the new lounge leopards of the real fur or of velvet are a clever addition to one's boudoir—and much smarter than the boudoir doll which has been popular for so long a time. A jewsled collar and topaz eyes add to his majesty's charm Or if one prefers a more docile animal the problem is solved in the choice of one of the musical pillows with an appliqued replica of one's pet dog, made out of a real pelt The pillow is piped in black and comes in boudoir shades. The slightest pressure on the satin pillow brings forth sweet melody and a mysterious element is added by the fact that there is no visible evidence of its musical qualities and that no winding is necessary.

UNDERGROUND RIVER IS BOON TO SUGAR COMPANY

HONOLULU — An underground river which was discovered on the island of Kauai more than a year ago when experts from the McBryde Sugar Company were searching for additional sources from which to irrigate their cane is continuing to flow with no inclination of easing up or stopping

The 'river' which is really an underground stream flowing to sea through a granite lava tube has proved a boon to the plantation It is four feet deep and six feet wide and averages between 26 and 30 million gallons of water daily Its source appears to be the high rainy section of the island which lies in the vicinity of Mount Waialeale which has the distinction of being the rainiest spot on earth, with an annual rainfall of more than 400 inches.

$100,000 COLLECTION OF SMALLEST BOOKS SHOWN

NEW YORK—A collection of the smallest publications in the world have been placed on exhibition in the public library here. The collection is said to be worth more than $100,000

The smallest book in the group is a translation the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, which is five sixteenths of an inch square, less than an eighth of an inch thick and contains 48 pages, on each of which are three verses.

Miniature newspapers, some of which are smaller than a postage stamp, are also in the collection.

Among others are Galileo's "Maggone Christino," the smallest book ever printed with movable type, a 4,000 year old Babylonian clay tablet, inch size histories of the world and a miniature stamp album

IT'S A SMALL WORLD

AFTER you have discovered that some important possession, perhaps your key ring or purse, is absent from its accustomed position, just the small part of the globe in which you have been moving that day seems pretty hopelessly large!

The missing article may have dropped in the office or street downtown or somewhere on the way home. The possibilities seem almost endless.

Perhaps you have called up the police station and the lost property office of the street car and bus company, not to speak of the one or two friends at whose offices you had called briefly. But nothing has been seen of it and the word "lost" seems to ring persistently in your mind.

This is just the time to remember the "Lost and Found" column of The Marion Star Classified Section and to describe the thing which needs to be found to an ad-taker at Phone 2314.

The rapid response to one of these ads is apt to make you agree that the world is very small.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

The price of lemons took another tumble today in Marion's market places, this time dropping to 39 cents per dozen. A few days ago the price of this fruit suddenly shot up to 60 cents. The first of the week it dropped to 48 cents and today it descended still more.

Due to a scarcity of new cabbage at the present time the price advanced from five cents a pound to seven cents. There is only a limited supply on the market.

Prices on all other commodities remain unchanged for the heavy week-end shopping which is expected.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—Prospects for farm relief legislation once again jumped into the limelight as a grain market factor and all the markets were strong yesterday. Bullish sentiment, started on its way by the upturn in corn the previous day, grew as the session progressed, and trade broadened to the largest proportions in some time.

Opening slightly lower, due to realizing sales, corn marked time in the early trade as commission houses and sold out longs took the surplus out of the pit. General buying and short covering followed when offerings lightened and the market advanced easily. All of the options again went to new high prices on the crop and at the close showed net advances of 1½c, with the March at 92¾, May 95⅞, and July 97¼c.

Wheat was firmer than corn early despite Liverpool's failure to respond entirely to the local advance of Wednesday. When corn prices started to climb, wheat responded readily. There was a wider interest, local short covering in large volume and purchases of the July by houses with eastern connections. Closing prices showed net gains of 1¼@1½c, with March at $1.18⅝; May $1.21¼ and July $1.22½.

Oats failed to follow the bullish corn action completely, but showed gains of ½@⅝c. A similar situation existed between wheat and rye, and the latter grain was only ¼@⅜c higher.

Despite the farm relief, crop scares and other reasons advanced yesterday for the buying, it seemed that most of the bullish enthusiasm had its foundation on the sudden broadening of trade in a market which so far on the present crop has been characterized by its dullness. The broadening of interest was in turn credited to increasing interest of speculators who have been combining their activities to the stock market.

Much of the buying in all grains was said to be based on expectations of a special session of Congress for farm relief. This was suggested by a statement credited to Senator Brookhart who, having had a conference with President-elect Hoover, said that the latter has a sound, practical and reasonable plan which will be divulged in the call for a special session.

In view of past performances of the market last Fall on expectations of farm relief, it seems doubtful that this could be the leading incentive, particularly on the present crop.

There was increased talk of $1 corn, and bulls pointed to higher country offerings yesterday as an indication that the country is holding out for that figure. News from the Argentine was still bullish; there were reports of Chicago being outbid for corn and of active export interest. On the other hand, there were also reports of re-sales of export grain and free cancellations. No actual sales were uncovered.

It is interesting to note that the open interest in wheat decreased more than 2,000,000 bu. on Wednesday's upturn, while the interest in corn decreased a little less than 1,500,000 bu.

In the cash market wheat was 1@2c higher; corn unchanged to 2½c up; oats steady to ½c higher; rye dull; and barley steady. Cars inspected—Wheat, 53 cars; corn, 264; oats, 45; rye, 5; barley, 15.

MORE THAN 300 SEE SCHOOL PLAY

Pupils of Pleasant High School Present Operetta

More than 300 enjoyed the "Love Pirates of Hawaii," an operetta staged by the pupils of Pleasant rural high school last night in the school auditorium.

The cast included more than half the entire high school enrollment.

Special costumes and stage decorations added much to the splendid rendition of the operetta. The rehearsals and staging of the operetta were under the direction of Miss Winifred Anderson, who coached the speaking parts, and Miss Mary Helen Etling, who coached the musical numbers. Mrs. Willis Goedicke directed the making of the costumes and assisted in preparing the stage decorations. All the musical scores of the operetta were played by Miss Mary Elizabeth Cooper, a high school student. These cooperated with Miss Dorothy Briggs, music supervisor for the school, who had charge of the entire program.

As an added attraction, the Laudon Hawaiian players of Marion, played several selections of Hawaiian numbers. A few vocal numbers were given also.

The Love Pirates was staged as the second number of the Pleasant rural school lyceum course, the other numbers being furnished by the Corenson Entertainment Company of Ada. The next lyceum number has been announced for Jan. 17 at which time the Boston Jubilee Singers, a group of five negroes, will give a medley of plantation and negro melodies as well as instrumental numbers.

In keeping with the program, Mrs. Earl Klingel gave a vocal solo, "Dusky Hands."

Arrangements were made for a day of prayer, later in the church year. Feb. 14 the next meeting will be held.
